

MAYOR MACSWINEY DIES AFTER 73 DAYS ON HUNGER STRIKE

MUD ENDS TRUCK TOUR FOR ROAD BOND ISSUE

Party Disbands at Carthage After Being Detained There Since Thursday.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 25.—The west-bound Army-Navy truck tour which left St. Louis Sept. 27 for Kansas City and which has campaigned the southern part of the State in the interest of the $60,000,000 good road bond issue, disbanded here today after being mud-bound since last Thursday. Roy S. Rauschold, commander of the tour, sent the soldiers and sailors to St. Louis by train, and the seven army trucks and touring cars which comprised the caravan were driven to Joplin, from which point they will be shipped to St. Louis on flat cars.

The expedition, which was scheduled to reach Kansas City tomorrow, encountered heavy roads just north of Jasper last Thursday and was compelled to return to Carthage to wait until the roads improved. Rain has fallen incessantly since then and the roads throughout Barton County, the only route to Kansas City, are submerged for a distance of 10 miles through what is known as the Marinas de Cygnus bottom. These roads are difficult to traverse in good weather and are impassable in wet seasons.

The caravan traveled almost four weeks without encountering any mud. A heavy rain, however, would have forced the expedition to disband at any point along the route after the first week's tour, as the hills are dirt and valleys are usually coated with gumbo. Twenty-eight counties have been visited and nearly 200 towns, many of which were not on the original itinerary.

Along the entire route the sentiment appeared to be overwhelmingly in favor of the bond issue to lift Missouri out of the mud. Barton, Vernon, Bates, Cass and Jackson are the counties between here and Kansas City which were to have been visited today and tomorrow.

Commander Rauschold and James P. Whiteside went to Lamar this afternoon, where they will speak on the sixth amendment before the Chamber of Commerce there tonight. From Lamar they will go to Kansas City and then to St. Louis.

GEORGIA DEMOCRATS OPPOSED "UNALTERABLY" TO THE LEAGUE

Senators Instructs Sen. Roosevelt Against It—Cox and Roosevelt Are Indorsed, However.

By the Associated Press.

MACON, Ga., Oct. 25.—"Unalterable opposition" to the League of Nations is expressed in the platform adopted today by the Georgia State Democratic Convention, and the State's Senators are instructed to vote against the covenant.

The platform, however, indorsed the candidacies of Gov. Cox and Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency and vice presidency.

SUPREME COURT REFUSES SUIT

Declines to Assume Jurisdiction Over Case Against Colby.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Supreme Court today refused to grant the request of Harry S. McCarney, a Chicago lawyer, that it assume original jurisdiction over his suit brought in the District of Columbia courts to compel the Secretary of State to promulgate the peace resolution passed last May by Congress.

President Wilson vetoed the resolution and it was not passed over his veto.

7 MILES OF ROAD TO BE CLOSED

Grading on St. Charles Highway Will Be Started Tomorrow.

The St. Charles rock road, from the Lackland road to Trausville avenue, a distance of about seven miles, will be closed by the highway engineer of St. Louis County tomorrow, when grading for the new State highway will be started.

It is announced that the road probably will be closed all winter, and traffic for St. Charles will be diverted to National Bridge road as far as its junction with the St. Charles rock road, just west of the Lackland road.

LORD MAYOR OF CORK WHO DIED ON HUNGER STRIKE

TERENCE MACSWINEY.

Cork Executive Had Refused Nourishment Since Arrest Aug. 12 and Eclipsed Medical Records for Fasting.

SERIES OF FUNERAL SERVICES PLANNED

Length of Ceremonies Will Depend on Action of British Government; Was Convicted of Sedition.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, died at Brixton Prison, this city, at 5:40 o'clock this morning. His death followed a hunger strike of 73 days, eclipsing any in the annals of the medical world.

MacSwiney, who had been unconscious for several days, did not recover his faculties before he died. Father Dolan, his private chaplain, and his brother, John MacSwiney, were with him when he died. Father Dolan was at the prison all night and did not leave until several hours after MacSwiney breathed his last.

John MacSwiney and the chaplain, who had been visiting downstairs in the prison were told by prison officials at 4:30 o'clock that they should go to the Mayor's bedside, as they thought death was approaching. The brother asked for the privilege of communicating with other relatives who were not present, but the officials said, "It is said, refused him the use of a telephone."

Brother and Chaplain Detained. After the prisoner's death, his brother and the chaplain were not permitted to leave Brixton prison until 6:15 o'clock. John MacSwiney immediately conveyed word to the widow of the Lord Mayor, who was staying at a West End hotel with Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, the former being the London executive of the Irish Self-Determination League.

Mrs. MacSwiney, accompanied by her parents and the Misses Annie and Mary MacSwiney, sisters of the Lord Mayor, arrived at Brixton prison at 8:30 o'clock.

After the Mayor, who had reached the stage of extreme emaciation, had become periodically delirious, the officials began to give him liquid nourishment. This came too late, however, as the Mayor has been all but dead for many days.

As the end approached the authorities restricted the visits of his relatives, declaring this was in the interest of the prisoner who was said to be too weak for excitement. Last evening, his brother Sean (John) and Father Dolan stayed in the prison in view of eventualities. Shortly before 6 o'clock this morning they were summoned to see the Lord Mayor, who had taken a bad turn. They found him lying motionless with his eyes open but unconscious. Father Dolan whispered a prayer, but the dying man did not recognize him. The priest then recited the prayers for the dying, while Sean, the nurses and the four doctors, including the expert adviser of the Home Office, stood by.

Father Dolan and Sean then retired to allow the doctors to do what they could for the Lord Mayor. One of them injected strychnine. Father Dolan and Sean in the meantime were repeating rosaries in Gaelic in another part of the ward.

The physicians shortly notified them that the Lord Mayor was beyond human aid, and Father Dolan again said the prayers for the dying. Just as he finished, the Lord Mayor breathed his last.

Would Avoid Demonstration. Peter MacSwiney, another brother of the Lord Mayor, left Brixton prison late this afternoon to visit headquarters of the Irish Self-Determination League to request that no demonstration by sympathizers of Lord Mayor MacSwiney be permitted outside of the prison. Peter expressed the fear that a demonstration might be held which would prevent removal of the body today after the inquest.

Mayor MacSwiney's body was removed to the prison morgue this afternoon, but no definite statement concerning the time of the inquest was obtainable. The police force about the prison was greatly strengthened.

The cause of MacSwiney's death was "heart failure," according to a statement issued at the Home Office. This statement is considered an indirect answer to the criticisms of Dr. Josiah Oldfield, the physician and publicist, who had declared it

U. S. FISHING SCHOONER OFF FOR HALIFAX RACE

Esperanto Will Meet Canadian Craft Deleawanna for North Atlantic Championship.

By the Associated Press.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 25.—The fishing schooner Esperanto, slicked up like a millionaire's yacht, put out to sea today to the cheers of every old salt and young sailor in this port, bound for Halifax, Nova Scotia, where she will meet the crack Canadian fisher craft Deleawanna, in a series of races for the championship of the North Atlantic.

After being towed out of the inner harbor to avoid the necessity of beating against the wind, the Esperanto shook off the tugs outside and showed her nautical heels to crowds which lined every wharf and packed raft of every description.

Capt. Marty Welch pointed Gloucester's line into the north-east on the 250-mile course for the racing ground, apparently as confident of the outcome as if his destination were the fishing banks and the prize a catch of cod.

Esperanto was not Gloucester's fastest schooner, that was conceded, but she was nearly as good as the best, and in a blow could beat any down East two-sticker afloat—of that the fishing folk were confident. This was the essence of some of the farewells, in which Mayor Charles D. Brown appeared for the city, and members of every craft connected with the fishing industry, hand line fishermen, salters, strippers, packers and cold storage men added their word or two.

Esperanto carried her four lower sails, masted on the main topsail, foresail and foretopmast, when she cast off from the wharf and, free of the tug, Capt. Welch sent up his light stayalls and jibs to present virtually a full suit of canvas which fitted in yacht fashion.

All sail was set as the schooner slipped out of view around Eastern Point, and, with a fair start, it was expected her skipper would bring her to anchor at Halifax by Wednesday afternoon.

ACTOR PLAYING NIGHT LINCOLN WAS SHOT STILL ON STAGE

Two Surviving Members of Company Met at Special Matinee of "Abraham Lincoln."

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The two surviving members of the "Our American Cousin" company, which was playing at Ford's Theater in Washington in 1865, the night John Wilkes Booth assassinated Abraham Lincoln, met here today when they attended a special matinee of John Drinkwater's play "Abraham Lincoln." One, Mrs. Kathryn Evans, is an inmate of the Episcopal Old People's Home, here and the other, W. J. Ferguson, is still on the stage, appearing at a local theater.

G. A. R. Veterans and wounded soldiers from the army and marine hospitals in Chicago were guests at the special matinee.

2000 IN THEATER WHEN OWNER IS ROBBED OF $3143

Three Men Enter Place in Omaha, Bind Owner and Take Day's Receipts.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 25.—One of the boldest robberies in the history of Omaha took place shortly before 11 o'clock last night, when three men entered the Empress Theater, bound and gagged W. Ledoux, the owner, and took $3143 from his pockets and the till and escaped by the front entrance.

At the time of the robbery nearly 2000 persons were in the building.

MOTHERS ADVISED TO USE POWDERED MILK FOR INFANTS

Substitution Urged by Chief of Staff of Children's Hospital, Who Says Babies Are Dying.

WARNING AGAINST GIVING ICE CREAM

Dr. John Zahorsky Says at Meeting Called by Women Milk Is Causing Sickness Among Children.

Twenty organizations today were pledged to a campaign for more wholesome milk in St. Louis after their representatives, meeting at Hotel Statler, has listened to statements by several physicians, specializing in the treatment of children, that the milk now being supplied to households here was unsafe for infants and was producing intestinal ailments among them.

Dr. W. McKim Marriott, chief of staff of the Children's Hospital, advised the use of powdered milk until the dangers in the present milk supply could be corrected. "That is the public's comeback to the dealers who are scraping over one tenth of one per cent in the price, while enforcement of the milk ordinance here is suspended and while babies are dying," he said.

Warning Against Ice Cream

Dr. John P. Zahorsky said that he wished to corroborate what Dr. Marriott had said. "We have been having a great deal of baby milk for babies," he added. "Usually we expect summer troubles to subside after August, but intestinal troubles are continuing, many babies still are sick and some are dying. Clinical facts observed at bedside teach us that the milk being served here is producing sickness and some deaths. We cannot tell mothers that they can rely on the milk. We must advise them to give their babies ice cream. Ice cream that is not made from pasteurized cream is harmful. It is absolutely safe for children should not have ice cream except that made in the home from cream that has been previously boiled."

Dr. Borden S. Veeder, who is in charge of general baby welfare clinics maintained in the city, and who commanded St. Louis Hospital Unit No. 21 in France, declared that the reason that the infantile death rate here had been going down for five years was not the reason commonly assigned by the Health Department—good milk. "We were told last year that the milk in St. Louis was not bad because the death rate among infants was low and going lower," said Dr. Veeder. "The fact is that the death rate among infants has gone down in St. Louis not because of the milk, but in spite of the fact that this city has the worst milk of any large city in the country."

"The reason that the infantile death rate in St. Louis has decreased in the last five years is that in the last five years the number of breast-fed babies has increased 50 per cent. Seventy-five per cent of the babies in St. Louis are now breast-fed. Not more than 10 per cent are fed on cow's milk."

Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, who is the administrator of Federal pure food laws, was in attendance upon invitation to tell what his department considers as proper safeguards for milk in any large city. He said that every large city should be prepared to appropriate from 7 to 10 cents per capita of population for safeguarding its milk supply. This is a sum much larger than that now at the disposal of the St. Louis Department of Health for milk inspection.

Dr. Alsberg was told that the Department of Health frequently has stated its lack of authority over the producers of milk for St. Louis, normally farmers in Southern Illinois because of the fact that they are without the State of Missouri.

"That lack of legal authority easily can be circumvented and a very direct control over the source of this city's milk established," Dr. Alsberg said.

"The city of St. Louis should maintain in Southern Illinois one inspector for each 750 farms upon which milk sent to this city is produced. (Normally St. Louis milk comes from about 7000 Southern Illinois farms.) Those inspectors should see to it that the milk is produced and handled according to sanitary rules, is properly cooled and a low temperature maintained until it passes from the farmers' hands and is not adulterated or watered. If any farmer fails to observe the requirements of the city milk inspectors, then the St. Louis distributor to whom that farmer ships should be notified that he must not receive

50 ST. LOUISANS IN PEACE LEAGUE DECLARE FOR COX

Members of Missouri Branch Sign Statement Declaring League Is Moral and Not Political Issue.

SAY COX "MEANS WHAT HE SAYS"

Signers Act as Individuals in Indorsing Letter Pointing to Disadvantages to U. S. of Rejection.

A declaration of preference for Gov. Cox over Senator Harding for the presidency and a characterization of the League of Nations as a moral and not a political issue, signed by about 50 St. Louis members of the League to Enforce Peace, was given out for publication today by the Missouri secretary, Miller Hageman, 773 Arcade Building.

The members signed as individuals and not as representatives of the League to Enforce Peace or of any political organization. The text of the statement follows:

"In the presidential election of Nov. 2, 1920, measures overshadowed candidates—overshadowed even political parties. The issue was not Democratic party principles in the composite sense versus Republican party principles in that sense. The issue is the League of Nations with the United States IN versus the League with the United States OUT."

"We are not justified in assuming that we, by remaining out, would disrupt the league, for it is a going concern, with 43 nations already IN. Our failure to enter would leave us outside, with Germany, Russia, Turkey and Mexico, without a voice in the league's councils, but subject nevertheless to such international laws as it shall write and presumably despised by the overwhelming majority of civilized nations in the league for abiding our fair share of the work and responsibility of the world peace."

Brothers of War. "But if by any chance the league did disband we would be obliged to turn to the teeth for the next great war which history so surely proves, invariably grows out of those only substitutes for a League of Nations, balances of power, the sort of 'war preventives' that bred the world war in which millions of human beings were killed and of which civilization has not yet wholly emerged."

"Gov. Cox is for the League of Nations. Senator Harding, according to many of his public utterances, notably those at Des Moines, Iowa, is against the league. Some voters say they are for Senator Harding because they believe he does not mean what he says. We prefer for the high office of President of the United States a man who does mean what he says. In fact, our sense of duty would not permit us knowingly to support for that office any other kind of a man."

"Every American citizen should ask of himself and in accord with the dictates of his or her own conscience, answer on Nov. 2 at the polls this question: Am I FOR the League of Nations, with moderate amendments, proposed by Henry and I, or am I AGAINST it, with a great and costly standing army and navy, national and international poverty, dishonor and death."

It was at first planned to take a referendum vote of the 5000 Missouri members of the League to Enforce Peace on their preference as to the election of Cox or Harding, but a telegram from William H. Short, national secretary of the league, calling attention to the fact that the league's articles of incorporation prohibited it from taking any part in political campaigns, prevented the carrying out of the plan.

Letter Sent to St. Louisans. Hageman, who is secretary of the Missouri branch of the league, then sent letters to about 300 St. Louis members of the organization and to a group of members in other parts of the State, asking them to sign as individuals the statement prepared by him. Up to 11 o'clock today he had obtained the signatures of the following, to whom he had addressed copies of the statement:

Charles Clafflin Allen, former Circuit Judge, and a lifelong Republican, who will vote for Cox; Joseph R. Barroll, manager of Butler Bros.; A. D. Branham, president of the Automobile Association; Col. Paul W. Brown, editor and publisher of "America at Work"; H. L. Brunson, special agent of the New York Life Insurance Co.; Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council; A. B. Chapin, cartoonist; Hamilton Cooke, inspector of agencies of the New York Life Insurance Co.; Col. Francis M. Curlee, lawyer; Joseph T. Davis, lawyer; J. Lionberger, Davis, former president of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Civic League; Thomas G. Dix, Mayor Urges Closing of All Business Houses at Noon on Election Day

REQUEST that all St. Louis business houses and employers of labor release their employees at noon election day so that all will have opportunity to cast their votes, was made today in a proclamation by Mayor Kiel.

The Mayor declared that the number qualified to vote was approximately 315,000, while there were only 600 polling places to accommodate them. "For the entire 13 hours that the polls are open," the proclamation states, "there must be an average of one vote cast in each polling place for every one and one-half minutes of the entire time in order to accommodate this vast number of voters."

Realizing that the greater number of votes will be cast at the opening and closing hours and knowing from past experience that it has been almost impossible for all voters appearing between 8 and 7 p. m. to cast their ballots, therefore, I call upon all business houses and employers of labor to close at 12 o'clock noon, so that each registered voter may have the opportunity to proceed to the polls and cast his vote to the end that we may get a true expression on all subjects growing out of the election."

A State statute permits any voter to absent himself from his employment for four hours on election day between the hours of opening and closing of the polls and his employer is forbidden from deducting anything from his wage or otherwise penalizing him. However, the employer is given the right to name the hours to be taken.

REPUBLICAN AGAINST COX, BUT COLLECTS $26 FOR HIS FUND

Arkansas Man Does Work as Personal Favor for Campaign Manager.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 25.—Personal friendship still has a place in political campaigns, in the opinion of Lloyd England, State manager of the Cox-Roosevelt campaign fund in Arkansas.

Recently England appointed W. S. Furman of Waldron a solicitor in his district for Democratic campaign subscriptions. Last week he received a check for $26.47, together with a letter from Furman which in itself stamped the writer as the world's most forgiving Republican.

The letter stated that the writer had been a life-long Republican and now was openly opposed to Gov. Cox, and added: "I got a distaste for the founders of the Solid South Democracy a long time ago by being changed three times, having a fire built to burn me, being shot at a number of times, being forced to run and hide often, and bear other hardships from these same founders of the Solid South Democracy, because I differed from them in opinion."

"Nevertheless, with due respect for, and as a personal favor to, you only, I have canvassed the people of Waldron and surrounding country for three days, as requested by you, and have collected $26.47, which I send herewith by personal check."

OPERATORS' LIABILITY LIMITED IN EASTLAND DISASTER CASES

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Claims Brought by Dependents of Victims.

PRESIDENT OF LEAGUE COUNCIL SAYS ARTICLE TEN IS NOT ESSENTIAL

Leon Bourgeois Says it Is Scarcely More Than a Moral Background to the Covenant.

"ALL PENALTIES PROVIDED ARE IN OTHER ARTICLES"

Frenchman Tells Correspondents Europeans Do Not Consider Disputed Point So Important as Americans—Gives Consent to Cabling of Statement.

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—Leon Bourgeois, President of the Council of the League of Nations, talking to American newspaper correspondents last night, said that Article 10 of the covenant of the League of Nations is not considered by European statesmen as a vital and essential element of the covenant.

M. Bourgeois said he had been surprised that this article 10 had caused so much emotion in the United States. He stated that article 10 could be eliminated without in any way modifying the effectiveness of the League of Nations.

"Article 10," said M. Bourgeois, "is scarcely more than a moral background to the covenant. It is not considered so important by Europeans as by Americans."

"There is really no sanction, or penalty, in this article. All penalties provided for in the covenant in order to make the league's action effective are in other articles."

M. Bourgeois' statement was made in the course of an interview arranged for American correspondents by M. Cornet, principal press official of the League of Nations. After M. Bourgeois had withdrawn, the question was raised among the American correspondents to the effect of M. Bourgeois' utterances on the presidential election in the United States. It was thereupon mutually agreed to withhold the statement until M. Bourgeois could pass upon it as being issued with the fullest authority and approval.

M. Bourgeois was seen this morning by M. Cornet, who then told the correspondents he had explained to M. Bourgeois the importance of his remarks and requested M. Bourgeois to say whether he intended them to be published in the United States. M. Bourgeois replied, said M. Cornet, that he understood the importance of what he was saying, and was quite willing the interview should be printed.

M. Bourgeois, continuing the conversation of last night, and replying to questions regarding the prospect

BANKS PAYING TAXES SO THAT CITY CAN PAY ITS EMPLOYEES

Clearing House Members Agree to Request of Mayor and Comptroller.

St. Louis banks, at the request of the Mayor and Comptroller, are paying their taxes so that the city can pay its employees. The banks usually wait until the last few days of the year to pay, but the city has only about $500,000 on hand for paying salaries and if the banks had not come to the rescue it would have been necessary to borrow. When the situation was explained, E. E. Pryor, chairman of the management board of the Clearing House, took it up with the 60 banks and trust companies and they agreed to pay up.

The amount which will be received from them will be $1,047,794, of which $688,872 will be the city's share.

SIX STOKERS ON FRENCH LINER KILLED ON VOYAGE TO U. S.

Three Others Injured in Accident to Stoking Machinery Soon After Leaving Havre.

HAVRE, France, Oct. 25.—Six stokers aboard the French liner France, which left here Sunday evening for New York, were killed, and three others injured, in an accident to the stoking machinery of the vessel, according to a wireless message received here today.

The steamer will disembark the victims at Cherbourg and continue the voyage to New York.

WOMAN HIT BY STREET CAR DIES AT HOSPITAL

An unidentified woman, about 50 years old, died at the city hospital at 11:45 a. m. today from injuries received at 7:30 a. m. when she was struck by an east-bound Cass car near Cleary street, after she had slipped and fallen on the wet pavement near the track. She was thrown to the curb and her skull fractured.

She had stepped from the curb about 100 feet east of Cleary street and was proceeding in the street toward the car stop.

Philadelphia's Birth Rate Gains. PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—Philadelphia's birth rate has shown a notable increase in the first eight months of 1920, after a decline during the war. COX MUST GET BIG LEAD IN NORTHERN OHIO TO WIN STATE Hamilton County, Which Helped Elect Him Governor, Is Expected to Go Republican.

SWING TO COX ON, OBSERVER SAYS

Republicans in Cincinnati Admit Davis, Their Gubernatorial Candidate, Is Losing Strength.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25.—Gov. Cox's chances of carrying Ohio have seemed to depend largely on what he can do in such Republican strongholds as Hamilton County, which includes in its boundaries the city of Cincinnati. Every time Cox has run for office in Ohio, he has either cut down the Republican majority or carried the county. The Republicans explain it on the ground that the "wets" helped Cox, or that the Republican organization itself was lukewarm toward such pronounced "drys" as Frank B. Willis, the opponent of Cox in two of the gubernatorial races.

What, therefore, will Cox do this year in Hamilton County? It seemed worth a special investigation. First of all, much to my surprise, there is no wet and dry issue. Liquor organizations as such are not active or visible. The Republican workers, however, being not at all blind to the fact that Hamilton County contains many Republicans who have voted in the past for Cox on the wet issue, simply printed in large quantities one of the newspaper dispatches from the Far West wherein Cox said in effect he would have voted dry had he been a member of the United States Senate.

Friendly Feeling for Donahay. But the prohibition question is not a factor of importance. The same friendly sentiment for a Democratic Governor prevails toward the Democratic nominee for Governor—C. A. Donahay—yet, with respect to the national ticket, traditional party lines seem to be followed.

The Republicans talk of carrying Hamilton County by 50,000. The Democrats privately concede Cox cannot carry the county, but they think the majority for Harding will not be much better than the Hughes majority of 14,000 or its equivalent, 25,000, with the women voting this year.

If Gov. Cox can come down to Hamilton County with a lead of 35,000 to 40,000, he would still be able to carry Ohio by a majority of from 10,000 to 15,000. That's Democratic optimism in Southern Ohio. The Republican workers whose morale must be kept up and leaders whose hopes are never dashed to the ground till the last vote is counted, firmly believe the reduction of the Harding majority in Hamilton County will mean a Cox victory in the State.

As for Springfield, O., this correspondent learns that the normal Republican majority will probably be increased there and that in Dayton a bitter fight is being made which will have the effect of keeping down the decisive majority which the friends of Cox have been expecting in his home county.

Stimulated by Drift to Cox. The Governor is due to speak here this week and the local Democrats who have been stimulated by the noticeable drift of Cox in the last few days think the effect of the visit will be to cut down further the Harding majority in Hamilton County.

It is easy to dismiss Ohio with the whispered statements of several well-informed Democrats who think the State is lost on purely Wilson and anti-Wilson issues, but there is no denying the steady growth of Democratic strength ever since Senator Harding made his speech at Des Moines which was interpreted as a rejection of the present League of Nations.

One of the newspapers here printed 100,000 copies of the covenant for free distribution and the supply was quickly exhausted. The Democrats who were inclined to scoff at the League of Nations in the past vote-getting proposition admit that they should have become enthusiastic about it earlier in the game.

They now see its possibilities. They insist that a mere reading of the covenant made votes simply because the text of the document refutes many of the arguments and misrepresentations that have been made by opponents of the pact.

On the other hand, Hamilton County reveals as elsewhere a fundamental desire for change in government at Washington based entirely on domestic issues. Some of Gov. Cox's campaign speeches have not weakened the ardor of independents. His slush fund talk and constant criticism of his opponent have failed to win him votes and, in some cases, indeed, have lost for him such strength as he had.

Friendliness to Cox. There is a distinct friendliness to Cox in this county. He knows personally many of the voters. There's a swing to Cox on now, but whether it will be sufficient to win Ohio is difficult to determine at this end of the State. Drifts are largely conjecture.

MACSWINEY'S LIFE TYPICAL OF SPIRIT OF IRISH REVOLT

Lord Mayor of Cork Spent Long Periods in Prison and Was Married in Jail—Was Man of Poetic and Literary Attainment.

By JAMES M. TUOHY, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney's career was typical of those of numerous other Irishmen. He had virtually been an outlaw for four years, was arrested and sentenced by a military tribunal to a term of two years' imprisonment.

His age was 40 years. He was born March 28, 1880, the son of the late John MacSwiney of Cork, and educated at the Christian Brothers School in Cork. He was granted a degree of Bachelor of Arts in the Royal University of Ireland in mental and moral science. He was a great student of philosophy.

He started a business career in the office of Messrs. Dwyer & Co., Cork, as clerk in the counting house. Later he became technical instructor in commerce under the Department of Agriculture and Technical Instruction (Ireland). From boyhood he was always keenly interested in politics and always worked for the complete independence of Ireland. He was a member of the Celtic Literary Society, the Gaelic League, the Wolfe Tone Club and all the progressive societies of modern Ireland. He was a member of the Irish Volunteer organization since its inception.

One of First in Dail Eireann. At the general election in December, 1918, MacSwiney was returned as the Sinn Fein candidate for Cork. He attended the first meeting of the Dail Eireann on Jan. 21, 1919, when the establishment of the Irish Republic was confirmed, and since that time has been a regular attendant at all meetings of the Dail.

He was elected Lord Mayor of Cork in March, 1920, in succession to Alderman Thomas MacCurtain, who had been murdered some days previously. He underwent the following terms of imprisonment: In January, 1916, he was arrested and detained five weeks in the Cork jail; when brought to trial he was acquitted. On May 3, 1916, after the Easter week rising, he was arrested in London and detained in Brixton Prison, England, an internment camp in Wales and Reading jail in England, being released on Dec. 24, 1916.

Married in Jail. In February, 1917, he was re-arrested and deported to England. The trial, though they are reflected in street talk and the announcement of independents and pro-League enthusiasts that they will vote for Cox.

The Republicans themselves admit that their gubernatorial candidate, Harry Davis—is losing strength and that this may affect adversely the congressional ticket, which is on the same ballot, but that they do not admit that Cox is benefiting particularly by that phase of the situation.

Hamilton County, which helped elect Cox Governor of Ohio, will go Republican. If the remainder of the State gives Cox a lead, he could win without Hamilton County.

MACSWINEY DIES AFTER A 73-DAY HUNGER STRIKE

was wrong for the Lord Mayor's doctors to administer meat juice and brandy. He said brandy was poison and that a man at the point of death was very susceptible to poison. Dr. Oldfield said that when a man fasted a long time the first food he could endure was fruit juice.

When one of the officials was asked today regarding Mrs. MacSwiney's absence from the bedside when death occurred he replied by saying the restrictions which were recently imposed upon the visits of relatives were urged by the attending physicians as vital to the prisoner's own interests.

The news of his death spread rapidly throughout the United Kingdom and preparations for a great funeral were immediately begun by the Sinn Fein. The plans, contingent upon Government approval, include the body lying in state in St. George's Cathedral, in London, and the Mansion House in Dublin, and a series of services en route from Dublin to Cork.

Similar plans were made some time ago, when it appeared that the Lord Mayor was about to die, and it is known that at that time the Government took steps to repress what it might consider an undue demonstration. Just what the attitude of the Government will be in the present case is not known, but it appears certain that no large demonstration of any kind would be sanctioned, either in England or in Ireland, and that the funeral probably would be controlled as was that of Michael Fitzgerald in Cork recently.

Arrangement for Burial. MacSwiney's grave will be along order for his deportation required him to live in the states area of England and forbade him to return to Ireland. During the period of deportation he was married, on June 9, 1917, to Miss Muriel Murphy of Cork and a week later the deportation order against him and his fellow deportees was revoked. In October, 1917, he was re-arrested in Cork and detained in the Cork jail under sentence of six months' hard labor. On November 10 he and his fellow-prisoners went on hunger strike to protest their treatment as political prisoners. The hunger strike lasted three days, to Nov. 13, when they were released under the cat and mouse act.

In March, 1918, he was re-arrested in Cork and sentenced to the unexpired balance of a six months' sentence, and sent to Belfast jail, then Dundalk jail, then again to Belfast; he was released on Sept. 4, on the same day he was arrested in London. He was in the Belfast jail and sent to Lincoln Prison in England in company with De Valera and others. He was allowed to go home on parole in March, 1919, and whilst on parole the order of detention was revoked.

Perpetually a Fugitive. Ever since then MacSwiney had been constantly evading arrest. He was never able to sleep in his own house and was sleeping in the houses of friends, moving constantly from one to another, as information was received of movements to arrest him. Had he been able to move to the country he would probably have escaped arrest, but his duties as Lord Mayor, Chief Magistrate and other work of the public kept him constantly at work in Cork City, where he was arrested at the City Hall on the 12th of August, 1920.

He was always a literary turn, and if circumstances had been propitious, he would have devoted himself to poetry and literature altogether. In 1914 and 1915 he produced a paper of his own, the Fiance Fall, of which he was proprietor, editor and chief contributor. Like most of its contemporaries, it was suppressed. While the Celtic Literary society was active, members produced a magazine and also read essays for their meetings. In all of this work Terence MacSwiney was very active. He wrote many poems during this period. Some appeared in papers and magazines. He wrote plays which were produced by the Cork Dramatic Society, "The Warriors of Cumhal" and "The Winding Road," and a comedy, "Manners Masked Man." A longer play, "The Revolutionist," was published but not acted.

side that of his official predecessor, Lord Mayor Thomas MacCurtain, who was killed in the same line in Cork on March 20. MacSwiney was the fourth to be buried in this plot, the others being MacCurtain, Sheamus McGuire, who was taken out of bed in his Galway home and shot, and Jeremiah McNulty, who participated in the Easter uprising in Dublin in 1916.

Final obsequies will be held in Cork Cathedral and interment will be made in St. Fin Barre's Cemetery in Cork. The grave in which MacSwiney will be buried is known as "Republican Plot," which has been reserved for Irish Nationalist soldiers.

All South Ireland in Grief at News of Death. By the Associated Press. CORK, Ireland, Oct. 25.—Fervent interest in possible developments caused by the death of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork, which occurred in Brixton Prison, London, this morning, is mingled with the grief in which his death has plunged South Ireland. Although the people appear stirred to the highest degree of bitterness, it is regarded as extremely improbable that there will be any outbreaks or disorderly demonstration in this city.

Cork jail, where a number of hunger strikers are in grave danger, is guarded inside and out by soldiers equipped with machine guns. There is an exceptionally large garrison here. It is equipped for any contingencies, has a number of tanks and armored cars and ready for instant service. Military forces are so strong that it is considered improbable that any attempt at force will be made here.

It is understood the Irish Parliament had been making appeals to all elements of the population to refrain from violence. This is also believed to be the policy of various influential leaders of the Sinn Fein movement. Whether such counsels will be followed by the younger element or members of the Irish Republican Brotherhood, one of the most militant of Irish secret societies, remains to be seen.

Mourning and Prayers Throughout City of Dublin. DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—The news of the death of Lord Mayor MacSwiney of Cork in Brixton Prison, London, was received here with evidences of profound grief. It was intended to fly the city flag at halfmast, but British troops were in possession of the Mansion House over which the flag usually flies.

Throughout the city there were signs of mourning and prayers for the repose of the soul of the late Lord Mayor were offered in all the churches.

ITALIAN BALLOON IN RACE LANDS AT MT. CLEMENS, MICH.

American Entry, "Goodyear II," Reported Leading Group From Several Towns in Illinois.

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 25.—The French balloon Lorraine, entrant in the international balloon race, was reported over long distance telephone this afternoon to have landed two and one-half miles west of Madison City at 8:30 o'clock last night. Bad weather caused the descent.

By the Associated Press. MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Oct. 25.—The balloon Lorraine, which entered the race in the international contest for the Bennett trophy, landed here this morning. The big bag, piloted by Maj. H. Madori, of Lieut. A. Piazoli as aid, left Birmingham, Ala., Saturday night, for a greater part of the journey north the trip was made at an altitude of 12,000 feet and part of the time through a severe storm, with the temperature at 2 below zero.

Canada course took the big bag through Tennessee, Indiana and Ohio into Michigan. Lake St. Clair was sighted last night and with only one bag of ballast left the crew decided to land, bringing the bag to earth inside the city limits here.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—Reports of several of the seven balloons which left Birmingham, Ala., Saturday, in the international race for the Gordon Bennett trophy, were received from Illinois and Indiana towns last night. While in most instances the balloons were not seen, the American entry, the Goodyear II, piloted by Ralph Upson, apparently was leading, and all seemed to be drifting in a generally northerly direction toward the Great Lakes and Canada.

Four balloons were sighted at Marion, Ill., in the southern part of the State and almost due north from Birmingham, at 7:30 a. m. The Goodyear II was in the lead and was only a few hundred feet from the other balloons, which were in the rear.

The big gas bags apparently were spreading out somewhat in this territory, for Piana reported three balloons between 12 and 1 p. m. Windsor reported Upson's leading his lead at 1 p. m. and Danville 50 miles north and an equal distance west of Piana, sighted a bag at 1 p. m.

One of the entries passed over Logansport, Ind., 250 miles east and 200 miles north of Danville, Ill., at 4:30 p. m. It was reported "at great height" and headed northeast toward Lake Erie. Champagne, Ill., sighted the Goodyear II at 5 p. m. and reported that the American entry still held a lead over the others.

Pilot Balloon Lands at Vandalla, Ill. After Being Up 12,000 Feet. By the Associated Press. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 25.—The pilot balloon, "Birmingham," which left the field half an hour in advance of the international racers Saturday night, landed at noon yesterday in a corn field near Vandalla, Ill., according to messages received last night from newspaper men who were aboard. An altitude of 12,000 feet was reached just before the descent.

of numerous military raids throughout the city. Armed soldiers occupied the Mansion House and a search followed.

Hotels and private houses were raided and shots were fired. One soldier is reported to have been wounded.

MacSwiney Was Serving Sentence on Conviction of Sedition. MacSwiney's hunger strike was begun on Aug. 12, when, with ten of his associates, he was arrested by soldiers in Cork while attending a session of a Sinn Fein court. After trial by a court-martial under the regulations of the defense of the realm act, he was convicted of sedition and sentenced to two years' imprisonment, which he was serving in Brixton Prison, London.

At his trial, Aug. 18, he was found guilty of having control of the secret police cipher, of having in his possession a document likely to cause disaffection, namely, a copy of a resolution of the Cork Corporation pledging allegiance to the Dail Eireann, the Irish Republican parliament, and of having made a seditious speech on the occasion of his election as Lord Mayor of Cork. On the day after the trial he was deported to England on a destroyer and lodged in Brixton jail.

Fed by Prison Doctors. Within the past week, when it began to appear that the Lord Mayor was approaching the end, he was given liquid nourishment by the prison doctors during periods of unconsciousness. This fact appeared in statements by both the Self-Determination League, which had been issuing regular bulletins on MacSwiney's condition, and by the Home Office.

Memorial Service for MacSwiney Will Be Held in St. Louis. The Friends of Irish Freedom in St. Louis will hold a memorial service the latter part of this week for Lord Mayor MacSwiney. Arrangements for the service will be made at a committee meeting tonight at St. Mark's School, 1521 Academy avenue. If the Odeon can be obtained the service will be held there.

KING ALEXANDER SUFFERING FROM SUFFOCATION

Worse, Says Bulletin Issued at 9 P. M. Yesterday—Heart Affected.

By the Associated Press. ATHENS, Oct. 24.—King Alexander's condition has become worse, says a bulletin issued at 9 o'clock tonight (Sunday). His heart is seriously affected and he is suffering from suffocation, it is stated.

The disproportion of the King's pulse to his respiration, with his increasing temperature, is causing the gravest anxiety. Prof. Delbert, the French specialist, arrived today and immediately held a consultation with the other physicians in attendance on the King, who is suffering from infection resulting from the bite of a pet monkey.

A bulletin issued last midnight stated that the King's temperature was extremely agitated, varying from 100.22 to 101.3. The pulse varied from 130 to 148, and respiration from 40 to 48. Alexander's physicians remained at the palace throughout the night.

Premier Venizelos said today he hoped for King Alexander's recovery, but that it was necessary to be prepared. He believed Prince Paul, brother of King Alexander, would not be prevented from taking the throne by former King Constantine, as Constantine, he declared, would learn from the coming elections there was no prospect for his return and it was useless for him to bar his son from the throne.

The Premier asserted English or French candidates for the throne were not being considered. If the King should die before Oct. 29 the old chamber would be reconvened, but if death should occur after that date a new chamber would be called.

any more milk from that source until the requirements of clean production are met. The penalty of refusal of the distributor to obey that instruction would be revocation of his city license to handle milk.

Pasteurization Methods. "I do not know how many distributors of milk there are in St. Louis. But the city should provide enough inspectors for duty within the city so that the pasteurization methods of each of these distributors could be checked very frequently. The presence of the best of pasteurizing machinery is not guarantee that the milk will be properly pasteurized. Of course, the lack of proper pasteurization means the probability of the presence of an excessive number of bacteria, and the presence of excessive bacteria is a threat to public health."

It frequently has been asserted that pasteurization methods practiced in St. Louis in a number of dairies are imperfect and that in a very large number there is virtually no pasteurization, in violation of the city's milk ordinance. The Health Department, in commenting on this fact, has cited that it has only two milk inspectors, and thus is handicapped in the enforcement of the milk ordinance.

"The city also should possess," Dr. Alsberg continued, "very complete machinery for the chemical and bacteriological examination of milk and the chemical analyses and bacteriological counts should be made frequently. Failure to provide these safeguards means that the milk-consuming public has no assurance that the

Cox Strength Is Growing Rapidly, Morgenthau Says

Former Ambassador Sees Sweeping Democratic Victory if Sentiment Turns in Next Eight Days as It Has in Last Ten.

The growth of sentiment in favor of Gov. Cox, the League of Nations as it exists, and the success of the Democratic party in the coming election is likened to a rapidly growing snowball by Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, who will speak under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee at the Central High School at 8 o'clock this evening.

Morgenthau was financial manager of President Wilson's campaign in 1916. He has been nominated for Ambassador to Mexico. The appointment was made by the Senate, but it is expected that confirmation will follow recognition of the present Mexican Government.

"The Democratic snowball is rolling and growing," said Morgenthau at the Hotel Statler today. "If it grows as much in the next eight days as it has grown in the last 10 days there will be a sweeping Democratic victory. The outlook now is better than it was at this stage of the campaign in 1916. On Oct. 23, 1916, there seemed to be slight hope for a Wilson victory. We then resolved to put all of the remaining campaign money into newspaper advertising, and we centered on this sort of publicity in the last few days and won the election."

Expects Ohio to Go Democratic. The former Ambassador said he had been on a speaking tour of Indiana and Ohio and believed both would go Democratic this year.

"The great majority of voters unquestionably are for the League of Nations," he said, "and in these closing days of the campaign they are beginning to see that the Republicans are trying to fool and beguile them with a promise of 'some other association of nations.'"

"There is already a League of Nations, and under Article 29 of the covenant no member of the present league can join any other association of nations. Senator Harding and the other Republican leaders know that not one of the 43 nations in the League of Nations would join a new association. They must also know that in any new association the United States will have to consort with Germany, Turkey and the other nations which have not joined the League of Nations."

Article 10, "which has aroused so much Republican criticism, is the strongest and best article in the covenant. It would apply the Monroe Doctrine to the entire world and put an end to wars of conquest and disputes and fights over boundary lines."

"Today there are more soldiers under arms in Europe than there were in 1914, when the world war started. There will be armed camps so long as one nation fears that another nation means to seize the first opportunity to cross its borders and seize its territory."

"Article 10 pledges all nations in the league to prevent such encroachments. It says, in effect, to the nations: 'Lay down your arms. You need no longer fear that your neighbor will violate your boundaries and seize your territory. The league will prevent any such action.' With such a promise like that, the Rumanians, the Poles and the Serbs and other nations now fearing encroachment would have no further reason to carry arms."

"All Nations Tired of War." "The people of all nations are tired of war. They want to see it ended for all time. I am for Cox and Roosevelt because they are carrying the banner of humanity in the first effort that has been made in a thousand years to bring about real democracy in the world."

"The Republican party is the party of vested rights. In the conduct of the world's affairs it represents the same thoughts which inspired German militarism and the same thoughts, though expressed in another way, which inspired Russian Bolshevism—the thought that might is right and that those who have the power or can acquire it have the right to rule their fellow men without regard to the wishes of those fellow men."

A few days later Brines' automobile was found abandoned near where Drewes' body was discovered. Brines could not be found. Drewes and Brines were school boy chums.

health of its infants or the protection of its entire population from epidemics is guaranteed."

Subordinates of Dr. Alsberg in the St. Louis inspection office of the Bureau of Chemistry, conducted a survey in 1917 of conditions surrounding the production of milk for St. Louis. Their survey resulted in the indictment in 1919 of 20 producers and distributors of milk. A resurvey was made in 1919, after which it was announced that the conditions had not materially improved. When the cases came to trial, all the producers and distributors pleaded guilty or "nolo contendere" (no contest) and were fined in the Federal Court.

Dr. Alsberg, at the time of the indictment, said that the purpose of the Federal Government was to call attention of the city to the character of its milk supply in the hope that corrective measures would be undertaken by the city.

STUDENT SOUGHT IN MURDER SURRENDERS

Bail Denied William P. Brines, Alleged Slayer of Dartmouth Senior.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 24.—William Purdon Brines, the University of Pennsylvania student charged with the killing of Elmer C. Drewes, the Dartmouth College senior, surrendered to the police this afternoon and after a two-minute hearing before a police magistrate was committed to the county prison without bail.

Brines surrendered to his counsel at 1:15 p. m., and five minutes later he was taken into the city hall where a private conference was held. A few minutes later, Brines, with a smile on his face, was brought out to the open court.

James Gay Gordon Jr., Assistant District Attorney, asked that Brines be committed to prison without bail to await the action of the Coroner. Had Brines sought for the week.

William A. Gray, counsel for Brines, said there was no objection to the prisoner being committed at this time and testimony taken at the Coroner's inquest. Brines was formally committed and his photograph taken for the police records. Attorney Gray and Maj. Samuel U. Wynne, Chief of County Detectives, would make no statement as to where Brines had been.

The police had been searching for Brines for about a week. At no time was he believed to be far from the city. Brines' uncle and guardian retained Gray to protect the young man's interest, it was believed by the police that the hunted man would eventually surrender.

School Chum of Slain Man. The killing of Drewes occurred between 10 p. m. Saturday, Oct. 18, and daybreak the following morning. His body was found in a lonely road with a bullet hole in the forehead. There was nearly $1000 in Liberty Bonds, checks and cash in his pockets and the police at once concluded that robbery was not the motive. Letters found in Drewes' personal effects indicated Brines might know something about Drewes' movements.

A few days later Brines' automobile was found abandoned near where Drewes' body was discovered. Brines could not be found. Drewes and Brines were school boy chums.

RECORDS OF THE NOMINEES FOR ST. LOUIS BENCH

to Theron E. Catlin while C-tin served as Congressman from Eleventh District. Appointed Associate City Counselor in 1915. Has served as attorney for Police Department, defending replevin and habeas corpus proceedings. Defended the weights and measures ordinance and the moving van ordinance against attacks, the laws being upheld by Supreme Court. Also conducted successful resistance to habeas corpus proceedings under ordinance for detention of women afflicted with social diseases. Co-operated with Chief of Detectives Allender in drafting new concealed weapons statute, which Legislature passed but Gov. Gardner vetoed. Drafted ordinance requiring landlords to heat apartments. Caused action to put a stop to indefinite delays and defeat of justice through "shuffling" of criminal cases uppealed to Supreme Court. Served as legal adviser to district draft board, Nineteenth Ward.

Kimmel Defended Jack Kratz's Place.

Karl Kimmel, Republican, incumbent, 4569A Laclede avenue. One of the candidates backed by the "court-house ring." Was not one of the three receiving highest vote in Bar Association poll. Graduate of Baker University, Kansas, and of University of Missouri. Appointed police judge in 1911. In January, 1914, the grand jury requested Mayor Kiel to discharge him, on the ground that he had discouraged striking garment workers and waiters brought before him for violating city ordinances while picketing; also that he had been too easy with automobile speeders. President McPheeters of the Police Board complained that Judge Kimmel had permitted Jephtha D. Howe, a former political boss, to berate policemen in a speeding case, and he threatened to withdraw the motorcycle policemen from service if they were not better treated in police court. The Mayor had a long talk with Kimmel, but took no action. While he was a police judge, Kimmel wrote a letter defending the character of Jack Kratz's Fallstaff Cafe, on Sixth street, which the Excelsior Commissioner had closed temporarily.

During his term as Police Judge, he was instrumental in preparing a parole law applying to police courts and organizing a department to administer it. He recommended a law for detention and treatment of women afflicted with social diseases, and such a law was later enacted as a war measure. He was elected Circuit Judge in 1914. One of his policies, when in the criminal division of the court, was severity toward automobile thieves. Was criticized for his part in the release of a large number of negroes who were charged with attempted fraudulent voting at the 1916 election. This was largely a matter of partisan controversy, the Republican contention being that the wholesale arrests of negroes, at that election, were not made in good faith, but for the purpose of intimidating negro voters into remaining away from the polls.

In divorce cases where husbands have obtained decrees with the custody of children, because the mother has been shown to be unfit to have such custody, Judge Kimmel has followed the policy of permitting occasional visits by the mother to the child, believing that such visits do not harm the child, and benefit the woman.

The Democratic Nominees.
Richard A. Jones, Democrat, 5121 Kensington avenue. Indorsed by Democratic lawyers voting in Bar Association poll before primary. Has practiced law in St. Louis since 1908, and is one of the three vice-presidents of the St. Louis Bar Association. Served in Spanish-American War as a private in field artillery; now Judge-Advocate Spanish War Veterans, Department of Missouri. Former president Blackstone Society, and aided in beginning movement for more expeditious trial of cases in Circuit Court. Member of committee appointed by Bar Association which, in co-operation with Circuit Judges, drafted the present rules of the Circuit Court. Member board of trustees of Wesley House, Bell and Cardinal avenues, a community center for children.

Charles B. Williams, Democrat, 775 Clara avenue. Indorsed by Democratic lawyers voting in Bar Association poll before primary. Graduate of University of Mississippi; has practiced law in St. Louis since 1900.

Franklin Miller, Democrat, 1117 McCausland avenue. Indorsed by Democratic lawyers voting in Bar Association poll before primary. Graduate of University of Missouri and Washington University Law School; has practiced in St. Louis since 1903. Former treasurer Missouri Bar Association. Served as Government appeal agent in Eighth Ward, during period of operation of the selective service law. Nominee for Circuit Judge in 1916 and 1918; in latter election received highest vote among Democratic candidates.

Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Chauncey J. Krueger, Republican, incumbent, 2383 South King's highway. Supported by the "Court-house Ring." Not indorsed by Republican lawyers in Bar Association poll before primary. Formerly a court clerk and a Justice of the Peace. Elected to present position in 1916. In his first year it developed that he was accepting fees from bondsmen for men accused of violating the Sunday saloon law in lid clubs. The bondsmen for men accused would call at his home on Sunday afternoons, and would pay a fee to the Judge after he had signed bonds for their clients.

He explained that the bondsmen threw the money on his parlor table, and insisted on leaving it there. He said he felt he was entitled to some compensation for staying at home Sunday afternoons, and for the wear and tear on "the old lady's carpets." He said he had received $60 in this way in three Sundays, and that he felt it his duty to stay at home and sign the bonds, lest innocent persons should be locked up over Sunday night.

Examination of the statutes showed that Judge Krueger's action in accepting such fees was illegal, and he announced that he would stop it. Later in 1918 police officials complained that men arrested on felony charges were able to get bond from Judge Krueger so quickly as to defeat the efforts of the police to get evidence. As an instance, the case of "Bergadine" Miller, a notorious police character, was cited. He was taken to the North Market Street Police Station, with two other suspects, at 3:40 a. m., in connection with $12,000 dry goods theft. Twenty minutes after the arrest a bondsman appeared at the station with three bonds for the prisoners, signed by Judge Krueger, whose home is several miles from the station.

Judge Krueger's version of the matter was that the bondsman called at his home, awakening him, and he suggested that the bondsman might have received advance information from the detective who made the arrests.

Judge Krueger accepted bonds signed by a bondsman who Judge Falkenhainer had disqualified for lack of property qualifications. When Krueger's attention was called to the matter, he said he did not "give a damn" what the other Judge had done.

Anthony A. Hochdoerfer, Democrat, 2119 Koekuk street. Indorsed by vote of Democratic lawyers in Bar Association poll before primary. Graduate of Washington University; practicing in St. Louis since 1899. Served as provisional Judge in Court of Criminal Correction during absence of Judge Clark and Judge Miller.

Dressmaker Gives Advice

"I underwent a surgical operation for gall stones 5 years ago, was in the hospital 3 weeks. For one year I felt better, but then my old symptoms and pains returned, and I have suffered ever since. Four weeks ago on the advice of a lady I tried May's Wonderful Remedy, and I now feel like a new woman. I have a number of friends who suffer as I did and I am advising all to try this valuable medicine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolf-Wilson Drug Co., Judges & Dolph (3 stores), 2140 Olive, St. Del. 2369. Cloughly-Kopenbrink, Johnson Bros., Co., H. J. Stock Reducing Sale

ECONOMY Day this week comes during our Stock Reducing Sale—and it means bigger and better buying opportunities than we have presented this season. In fact, the values measure up to the standard of our Anniversary Sale offerings and that's as much as any store can say for values.

We do not quote comparative prices as a matter of policy—they are frequently misleading and breed untruths. But that policy should not prevent your being able to recognize the great savings that are to be effected in this sale.

TWO MEN DIE FROM POISONING BY WOOD ALCOHOL

One Employee of Storage Company Dead on Reaching Hospital From Rooming House.

Henry Axle, 52 years old, a furniture packer, and Edward O'Shea, 26, a furniture mover, both employed at the Leonori storage warehouse, Grand and Laclede avenues, died today from the effects of wood alcohol poisoning, according to the diagnosis of city hospital physicians.

They were found unconscious in their room at 3546 Pine street, about 8:30 a. m., when the proprietor, Mrs. Mary Quinn, went to wake them. Axle was dead when he reached the hospital and O'Shea died there at 8:40 a. m.

Police who searched the room found several bottles of various sizes labeled "whisky" and one bottle labeled "wood alcohol," which still contained about three ounces of liquid.

The bottles in the room ranged from half-pint to quart size. The labels were those of standard brands of whisky, but the labels showed signs of age, and it was thought possible the bottles had been refilled.

At the rooming house it was said Axle had relatives in Maplewood and O'Shea had relatives in Ferguson.

Twenty-nine other cases of alcoholism were received at the City Hospital between noon Saturday and last midnight.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH CONVENTION AT THE COLISEUM CLOSES

Bishop Brent Describes Two European Conferences of Christian Unity.

The annual convention of the Disciples of Christ, which opened here last Tuesday, with all sessions at the Coliseum, closed last night, when Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal Church spoke on "The European Conference on Christian Unity," giving his impressions of two such conferences he recently attended. He delivered a sermon at Christ Church Cathedral yesterday morning.

"The Union of Protestant Churches in America" was the subject of Dr. George W. Richards, professor of church history in the Reformed Church Seminary, who also spoke. Many of the pastors attending the convention delivered sermons at churches of other denominations yesterday.

About 6000 persons attended communion service at the Coliseum yesterday afternoon, being those in attendance at the convention and other members of the Christian Church. About 200 elders and deacons served the communion.

Many of the differences between the conservative element and the main group of the brotherhood were said to have become settled during the convention, a month during the week there were many worthy controversies between the groups on the convention floor. It was said that many of the conservatives had become "reconciled" to the more modern beliefs of the main group.

Red Cross Gives Aid in Crimea.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—(Detail of the report of the American Red Cross in the Crimea are given in a report received from Sebastopol. Clothing to the value of 5,547, 651 francs and linen to the value of 1,628,027 francs, medicines and surgical instruments valued at 2,999, 960 francs have been distributed, and a number of children's homes, kitchens and sanitary institutions were established.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

First Step in Treatment Is a Brisk Purgative With Calomel, the Purified and Refined Calomel Tablets That Are Nauseless, Safe and Sure.

Doctors have found by experience that no medicine for colds and influenza can be depended upon for full effectiveness until the liver is made thoroughly active. That is why the first step in the treatment is the new, nausealess calomel tablet called Calotabs, which are free from the sickening and weakening effects of the old-style calomel. Doctors also point out the fact that an active liver may go a long way towards preventing influenza and is one of the most important factors in enabling the patient to successfully withstand an attack and ward off pneumonia.

One Calotab on the tongue at bed time, with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea, no the slightest interference with your eating, pleasure or work. Next morning your cold has vanished, your liver is active, your system is purified, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Druggists sell Calotabs only in original sealed packages, price thirty-five cents. Your money will be cheerfully refunded if you do not find them delightful.

Charge Purchases Made at the Remainder of the Month Will Appear on November Statements, Payable December 1st.

Furniture Sale

The Original and Fairly Marked Prices, Without Reservation or Restriction

This Furniture Sale came somewhat in the nature of a surprise, for it's unusual to reduce Furniture prices in November. But we have done this—reduced them substantially, and all because we are making every effort to give impetus to the movement for normal prices—as well as to acquaint St. Louisans with our new 7th Floor Furniture Section.

Furniture represents a truly magnificent collection which America's very best makers have contributed their choicest pieces. The regular fairly marked remains on each article, and the discount will be at the time of purchase.

Deferred payments can be arranged with our Department of Accounts.

"APPLE BLOSSOMS" IS SCINTILLANT OPERETTA

Kreisler's Daring Score, Jacob's Pulsing Tunes and Text Flashing With Wit.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.

A UNIQUE Sunday night audience, with faces on all sides that are familiar at concert and opera but strange to the theater, filled the American last night under the spell of the name of Fritz Kreisler. The occasion was the St. Louis premiere of "Apple Blossoms," in which the greatest of artists who wield the bow has made his first essay as a composer in the department of operetta.

The gathering assembled to hear Kreisler's music; it remained not only to be intrigued and then captivated by the audacious modernism of his melodies, but to revel in the most brilliant and prepossessing opus of his hand that has emerged in several years. There are mellifluous and pulsing tunes by Kreisler's collaboration, Victor Jacob's lines which, after a rather mediocre prologue has been dispatched, flash into an important sparkle of wit and paradox, lyrically phrased; lyrics scarcely Gilbertian, but far removed from the usual idiosyncrasy of the musical show. Settings of sumptuous munificence and beauty, by Joseph Urban, with an attractive cast headed by Charmes Wilda Bennett and by John Thomas, the brightest male luminary in the firmament of lighter song today.

Since Kreisler is Viennese, it was natural to expect from his pen suave and generous melodies, and particularly waltzes, in the manner of Oscar Straus or Franz Lehár. He has written for the violin numerous pieces, now household property, which are distinguished for their singularity and style. What, then, was the surprise, not to say perturbation, at discovering that this writer of songful melodies for his instrument had ventured here to compose for the voice the most violinistic music ever heard in an operetta?

Uses Chromatic Vocabulary. Distinctly instrumental is the chromatic diction which prevails in Kreisler's score until the last few numbers; instrumental likewise are the sharp angles of his melodic line, the acid effect of which is scarcely mollified by keen, strange progressions in the orchestra. These bizarre leaps from accidental to accidental would be thoroughly idiomatic for the violin, and in fact took on a certain suavity when played by the orchestra; they have no doubt become acclimated to the voice in grand operas such as those of Wagner and Debussy; but they must be not a little alarming and refractory of intonation to the average theatrical singer, as well as enigmatic to the ear of the average theater-goer.

But musicians will study and take delight in the originality and daring of songs like "Who Can Tell?" "Nanny's Farewell," "The Marriage Knot" and "Philip's Farewell." It is not so much to say that the treatment of these airs is an absolute innovation in operetta, and that Kreisler has not hesitated to enrich the field of popular entertainment with the new discoveries of recent pioneers in operatic and instrumental music. The experiment was a bold one; its success may be judged by the run of 114 performances which "Apple Blossoms" achieved in New York last season.

In the final act, however, Kreisler betakes himself to the vernacular of music, so to speak, and easily displays his mastery of the orthodox and readily assimilable tune. For sheer melody and rhythm in the popular tongue, "The Second Violin" is the most stirring number in the opera; and his "Star of Love," a Spanish serenade, is in a class with the "Caprice Viennois." Kreisler can also synopate it with the rest, as he proves in the vivacious measures of "A Girl, a Man, a Night, a Dance." "I Am in Love," a waltz song, proved somewhat commonplace of invention.

Jacob's Fine Tunes. Jacob's uses always the familiar musical speech of the theater, but with what eloquence! His waltz songs, "I'll Be True to You," which has already made its path to these parts by way of the phonograph, is a positive melodic inspiration. Other most beautiful numbers of his are a one-step, "When You Are Mine," a waltz, "Brothers," which won the first encore of the evening; a foxtrot, "When the Wedding Bells Are Ringing"; a song, "Little Girls, Good-bye," which was encored twice, and a waltz duet, "You Are Free."

Passing to the players, Thomas, who did not appear until the middle of the evening, from that point on lifted the vocal performance to distinction. He possesses a remarkable high baritone, ringing and musical in quality; and he uses it with admirable method of tone production and breath control. His acting has improved with a great bound since he was last seen here in "Maytime"; he can speak humorous lines with ease, and his demeanor has taken on ease, flexibility and elegance.

Miss Bennett, in all her appearances here, has never been so beautiful visually as she is in this play. The same cannot be said of her singing; judging from previous hearings, she was not in her best voice last night. She has a trick of singing with a tense and quivering chin, which disfigures both the music and her face.

Comedy was supplied by the droll English actor, Percival Knight, and by Edgar Norton, a delightful valet. Miss Temple as a wailing widow, and Ruth Lee, as a pretty maid, deserve mention. Last but not least, the dancing of Fred and Adele Aschire stopped the show whenever they appeared; he is a marvel of effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for infants and children.

HER ENGAGEMENT HAS JUST BEEN ANNOUNCED

Miss Ellen Lee Hoffman

for the first time in memory, look like human beings:

The story, which is of no great moment, concerns a marriage which is not a love affair, but a consolidation of railroad and copper mine interests. The bride and bridegroom fancy themselves in love with other persons, but gradually discover that the Wall street match-makers build better than they knew. For a fable apparently so unpromising, William Le Baron invented an amazingly scintillant text of dialogue and repartee—one almost Shavian in its humorous cynicism, sallies of wit and cleverness of phrasing.

CUSTOMERS OF MISSING TESLUK BROTHERS STILL BRING CLAIMS

Receipts Show $2500 Was Entrusted to Firm, Most of It to Be Sent to Poland.

Polish-speaking customers of Tesluk Brothers, 1106 O'Fallon street, dealers in steamship tickets, foreign exchange, Liberty bonds and war-savings stamps, the managing partner of which concern, Eddokin Fedorow Tesluk, disappeared Oct. 17, leaving a "back-in-a-minute" sign on the door, is being sought by the police, continued yesterday and today to call at the office and present receipts for money which they had entrusted to the firm.

Sums totalling approximately $2500 are represented in the claims submitted since last Friday, when it became known that Eddokin Tesluk, after cashing several checks which were not honored by the banks on which they were drawn, had locked his office and departed without leaving a forwarding address.

A policeman is on duty at the office night and day listing the claims, which, except in a few instances, are for money given to the firm to be sent to Poland.

The complaints now include Panphil Tesluk, elder member of the firm, who departed from St. Louis about a year ago to open a branch at 200 Broadway, New York. Five customers yesterday said that they had given sums ranging from $8.35 to $22 to Panphil Tesluk.

BETTER THAN WHISKEY FOR COLDS AND FLU

New Elixir, Called Aspirinal, Medicated With Latest Scientific Remedies, Used and Endorsed by European and American Army Surgeons to Cut Short a Cold and Prevent Complications.

Every Druggist in U. S. Instructed to Refund Price While You Wait at Counter if Relief Does Not Come Within Two Minutes.

Delightful Taste, Immediate Relief, Quick Warm-Up.

The sensation of the year in the drug trade is Aspirinal, the "two-minute cold and cough reliever," authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the common people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have tried.

All drug stores are now supplied with the wonderful new elixir, so all you have to do to get rid of that cold is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspirinal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful with four teaspoonsful of water in a glass. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes, if you cannot feel your cold fading away like a dream within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for the druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

When your cold or cough is relieved, take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and babies, for Aspirinal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for infants and children.

Miss Marie Odille Dodge has chosen Nov. 18 as the date of her marriage to John Bruce Stewart. The ceremony will take place at the St. Louis Cathedral at 11:30 o'clock in the morning. Miss Dodge is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Dodge of 4149 West Pine boulevard. She was educated at the Sacred Heart convent and at Washington University and was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball in 1914. Mr. Stewart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. Stewart of Richmond, Va. The couple will reside in St. Louis.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Ellen Lee Hoffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hoffman of 5217 Westminster place, to William Reuter Brashear. The wedding will take place early in January. Mr. Brashear is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. Brashear of 5730 Vernon avenue. He received his education at Princeton University and later went abroad in the Government service. Miss Hoffman is a graduate of Mary Institute and Vassar College and an active member of the Junior League.

Miss Katherine Nichols of 4059 Westminster place will be hostess at a bridge party and tea at her home, Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Menzenwerth Jr. are rejoicing over the arrival of a daughter on Oct. 22. Mrs. Menzenwerth was formerly Miss Gladys Blevins.

Mrs. Sam P. McChesney of 5619 Clemens avenue will entertain Wednesday afternoon with a tea at her home in honor of Mrs. Smith Bowman of Indianapolis, who is the guest of her sister, Mrs. D. C. Berryman of 5603 Kingsbury court.

Mrs. J. L. De Neille will entertain tomorrow afternoon with a bridge party at her home, 5463 Delmar boulevard.

Mrs. Felix Anderson of 712 Belt avenue entertained with a bridge party at her home Saturday afternoon in compliment to her guests, Misses Helen Van Zandt and Betty McGowan and Mrs. Smith Bowman of Indianapolis, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. D. C. Berryman.

Mrs. Edwin C. Keys and her small daughter, Miss Marcella Keys, of the Branscome Hotel have returned from Boonville, Mo., where they have been the guests of Mrs. Keys' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Frazer. Mrs. Keys has as her guests for a few days Mrs. William A. Teter of Hillsboro, O., and Miss Mary Teter of Boonville.

Mrs. Francis A. Lane and her daughter, Miss Belle Lane, have returned from their summer home at Manchester, Mass., and will reside at 5530 Delmar boulevard.

The wedding of Miss Belle Brickley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Brickley of Prairie du Rocher, Ill., and Courtenay J. Gonterman took place Saturday evening in the ballroom of the Hotel Statler. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Gillman in the presence of more than 300 guests. Mrs. Wilbur Gonterman was matron of honor and Miss Nellie Desobry of Indianapolis, maid of honor. The bride's other attendants were Misses Dorothy Bollinger of Waterloo, Ill., Ruth Hayden and Mrs. John Moyer Jr., of Granite City. Mr. Gonterman was attended by his brother, Wilbur Gonterman, as best man, and the groomsmen were John Moyer Jr. of Granite City, Norville Brickley of Festus, Mo., Edward Kaeding and Monroe Rodemeyer. The bride's procession was led by Charles Goetz and Bryan Voris, the ushers. Little Phyllis Gonterman of De Kalb, Ill., and Loretta Nassem of New York were flower girls and Charles Marshall was ring bearer.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin embroidered in metal, with a court train lined with white georgette and edged with a frill of tulle. Her tulle veil, which extended beyond the train, fell from a Roman cap of pearls and silver beads. The ceremony was followed by a dance and a buffet supper. Mr. and Mrs. Gonterman departed on a bridal trip and will be at home after Nov. 26 at the Hotel Statler.

The organization of Democratic women of the Hillcrest precinct will hold a community meeting at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Hohlitzelle, 6450 Ellenwood avenue. The speaker, who will talk on the League of Nations, will be Louis La Beaume. All women of Hillcrest, Skinner Heights, Brentmoor, Southmoor, Forest Ridge and Hi-Pointe are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. William V. Schevill are making their home for the winter at 4511 Washington boulevard.

Miss Rose McRae of 5588 Chamberlain avenue returned Saturday from Como, Quebec, where she has been the guest for two months of Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Stewart. Miss McRae's engagement to J. Alexander Stewart was announced last spring.

The marriage of Miss Alma Schiller to James A. Wright of Pelee City, Mo., was solemnized Thursday evening at the home of the bride's father, P. C. Schiller of Kirkwood.

Mrs. W. H. Supple of Chillicothe, Mo., will be the guest of Mrs. Timothy F. Harrington of 5673 Waterman avenue during the D. A. R. convention.

MADAM NOT BLAMED FOR POLITICAL CIRCULAR Farmer-Worker City Committee Finds Financial Secretary Not Responsible for Hyde-Spencer Attack.

The Farmer-Worker City Committee yesterday exonerated William S. McAdam, financial secretary of the committee, of all blame for his connection with the "Let We Forget" circular urging Republicans to scratch their nominees for the governorship and United States Senate and calling upon them to support the Farmer-Worker nominees. The vote was 10 to 4.

McAdam was censured in a report brought in by Jul Andersen, nominee of the party for Attorney General and chairman of a committee appointed to investigate the circular incident. The committee found that S. E. Chestnut, chairman, and M. Kuhn, secretary of the City Committee, had nothing to do with the matter.

Theodore J. Wolfley, a Republican, had said that McAdam gave him permission to use the name of Chestnut, Kuhn and McAdam in the circular.

"GIRL IN LIMOUSINE" GOOD ENTERTAINMENT

Single Bedroom Situation Made to Provide Laughter Through Three Acts.

By H. H. Niemeyer.

In this day of the bed-room drama, "The Girl in the Limousine," which came to the Shubert-Jofferson last night, is easily the bed-roomiest of any of the farces which have so far been on display here. Two of the three scenes of the Collision-Hopwood farce are played in bed and the leading woman is attired throughout in pajamas, while the leading man never gets closer to conventional attire than a woman's dressing gown. And while the piece throughout abounds in lines and situations which ten, or even five, years ago would not have been thought of as fit for the stage, they are not now considered objectionable by the general run of theater goers, and last night's audience was in a roar of genuine laughter most of the time.

There is, of course, much to criticize in "The Girl in the Limousine"—there is no girl in a limousine in the play, by the way—if one cares to be captious. As in most farces, the situations are not only improbable but usually impossible, but they are funny for all that, and the lines, while generally susceptible of more than one meaning, are bright and laughable, so that, except for the most squeamish theater goers, if there is any such animal left, "The Girl in the Limousine" is a very enjoyable entertainment.

Briefly, the plot brings out the fact that a young man is robbed in his automobile, which is afterward wrecked by accident, and the highwaymen, with a spark of pity, carry their unconscious victim into a nearby house and deposit him, by chance, in the bed room of a young married woman who is giving a house party, but who happens to be ill in bed with a cold. The robbers steal all of their victim's clothes and when he regains his senses the complications follow. The cleverness of the playwrights is demonstrated by the fact that they have taken a single situation, through three bright acts.

The company, made up of people unknown here, is excellent.

GOOD FILM DRAMA IS "HALF A CHANCE"

"Something to Think About" and "Nomads of the North"
Are Other Features.

A story of unusual interest is told in "Half a Chance," a Jesse D. Hampton special production, which opened yesterday, with Mahlon Hamilton and Lillian Rich in the leading roles.
This is a film version of a well-constructed novel by Frederic S.
Isaham.

There is strong human appeal in the adventures of the leading character, a professional prizefighter who has been convicted of murder on false testimony escapes while being taken to prison, ships as a stoker on a liner, is shipwrecked, rescues the daughter of the Judge who sentenced him, is marooned on a lonely island, finds a case of law books which has floated in from the wreck, studies the books in his solitude and learns enough law to enable him to return to the place of his conviction and clear his own name and bring the real murderer to justice. By virtue of all these achievements he wins the Judge's daughter. The production and the photography are above the average. On the bill also are a number of amusing short features and another installment of "Bride 13."

Power of Suggestion Featured.
Romance and an exploitation of the power of psychic suggestion are leading features of the latest Cecil B. DeMille production, "Something to Think About." Gloria Swanson is the heroine in the role of the village blacksmith's daughter, who is betrayed by an artist who refrains from declaring his love because he is crippled. He sends her away to be educated and when she returns home accomplished and more beautiful than ever her benefactor is on the point of revealing his love when she elopes with another. A fairly successful effort is made to show how the right thinking of the crippled savior is mentally conveyed to the eloping young woman in time to save her from the effects of her ill-advised act.

Good Curwood Production.
"Nomads of the North," which opened yesterday at the New Grand Central, is another of those imitable James Oliver Curwood productions fully up to the standard of those which have gone before. It is a melodrama of the far North, replete with incident and adventure and with touches of most amusing comedy in which a trained animal actor furnishes much of the diversion.
There is a villain of unbelievable roughness and a Northwest mounted policeman hero who is a prodigy of daring and valor. Of course, there is a heroine. The villain and an accomplice convince her that her lover has been killed. She is about to marry the villain when the lover returns and kills the accomplice. That puts the mounted policeman hero on the trail of the slayer. Just as he runs his man down there is a great forest fire, which is wonderfully shown in the picture. The fugitive saves the life of the policeman and the real villain dies in the fire. Out of gratitude the policeman agrees to report that the man he was chasing was killed, thus leaving him free to go away and start a new life with the girl who loves him.

Nazimova in Dual Role.
Nazimova has a sumptuous production in "Madame Peacock," which opened yesterday at the West End Lyric. She has a dual role, playing the part of mother and daughter simultaneously in several scenes. The story is that of an actress who deserts the husband who made her stage fame possible. The father deliberately trains their daughter for the stage and brings about a climax in which the daughter eclipses the mother when both appear in the same cast.

This week's bill at the Kings is "Earthbound." Tom Moore opens at the Pershing today in "Stop Thief."
The week's leading attraction at the Central is Anita Stewart in "Harriet and the Piper."

WOMEN WILL BE TOLD HOW TO WALK, STAND AND WHAT TO EAT

Lecturer at Y. W. C. A. Will Discuss What to Do to Be Graceful and Develop Personality.
Instruction for women and girls on how they should walk, stand, the kind of exercise they should take and the sort of food they should eat, in order to be graceful and possess personality, will be given this week in a series of public lectures by Dr.
Eva Blake of New York, at the Y.
W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, in the interest of the Health Foundation for Women. Grace, ease and personality are simply the natural results of health and comfort, Mrs. Blake says.

Following her arrival here, she said yesterday that the "kangaroo away" in women's walking had given way to the "gorilla slouch," which, she declared, is even more ungrace-ful and unhealthy. No one can be robust and consistently stand or walk in an incorrect posture, she said.
Among measures which she advocates are low shoes the year around, and uniform weight underwear for all seasons.

Dr. Blake will lecture at 8 p. m.
on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday.
Any women and girls who are interested may attend. On Wednesday evening she will talk at the industrial center at 1721 Washington avenue. Tomorrow afternoon she will address a meeting of high-school girls at the Y. W. C. A. building.
She will speak at the Markham Memorial Church, 1414 Menard street.
Some of her lectures will be illustrated with slides showing incorrect postures and unhealthful dress.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT LAST YEAR WAS 106,991

Report of Board of Education for 1919-20 Shows Record Number of Pupils.

An enrollment of 106,991 pupils in the St. Louis public schools for the school year of 1919-20 is shown by the annual report of various departments of the Board of Education, which was made public today.

The division was almost equal between boys and girls, there being 53,698 boys and 53,293 girls. The total, 106,991, was higher by 1196 than the total for 1918-19, and was the highest on record for the St. Louis schools.

The larger part of this growth was in the high school enrollment, which reached 11,393, or 1008 more than the previous year's enrollment, and representing a growth of nearly 80 per cent over the high school enrollment of 10 years before.

The annual cost per pupil in the high schools was $128.86, and in the elementary schools $51.83. For the previous year, the cost was $117.92 per pupil in the high schools and $44.62 in the elementary schools. Salaries of teachers and school employees have been increased in the last year.

Annual Increase Shown.
Since 1912 there has been an average increase of 2457 new pupils each year in the schools. Providing accommodations for these new pupils is shown to be one of the growing problems of the Board of Education. Relief of a temporary nature is provided by 13 rented buildings and 114 portable buildings. These portables are now located at 29 schools.

The summer schools of 1920 were attended by 18,783 students. Seventy-six high school students who attended were enabled either by review or advance work to complete their four-year high school course and receive diplomas. This number, together with those who finished high school earlier in the year, makes a total of 1106 who graduated, the largest number ever completing the four-year course in any one year.

2655 Teachers in Service.
There were 2655 teachers in the service of the schools during the year. Of this number 324 were men and 2331 were women. The report shows that 122 teachers resigned during the year. Vacancies in the elementary schools were filled by appointment of graduates of Harris Teachers' College, the training school for elementary teachers.

The part-time and continuation schools which were established at the beginning of the school year enrolled a total of 4553. The night schools had an enrollment of 12,458.

The total receipts during the year were $7,825,595.83 and the disbursements were $6,746,318.39. Receipts were derived from the following accounts: City taxes, $4,708,115.59; licenses, $799,745.85; State, $421,251.36; Federal, $13,006.42; rents, $111,640.35; interest, $127,796.91; tuition, $11,095.44; school bonds, $1,412,141; miscellaneous, $20,668.17.

The largest single item in the cost of the public schools was the expenditures for instruction. This expense is shown to be 73.7 per cent of the total cost.

MECHANIC WORKING ON WRECKED CAR ATTACKED BY AUTO PARTY

Victim Is Found Unconscious on Grand Avenue Viaduct With His Skull Fractured.

John Kye of 3529 Lindell avenue, an automobile mechanic employed at 217 North Theresa avenue, was working over a wreck of an automobile at 4:30 a. m. Sunday on the Grand avenue viaduct when an automobile occupied by seven men and two women, approached and stopped.

"Look at him, will you?" one of them said, indicating Kye. Several of the occupants piled from the machine and began to beat Kye. One of the women urged that the beating be made a good one.

Police later found Kye unconscious on the bridge. A physician said that his skull had been fractured. Kye told the police of the incident, but could relate no cause for the attack.

WAR DEPARTMENT PLANS TO REORGANIZE NATIONAL GUARD

Minimum Enlisted Strength of Approximately 423,000 Men Called for Under Law.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Immediate reorganization of the National Guard is deemed advisable, said an announcement today by the War Department.

The reserve and national guard officers of the general staff on duty in the department have been ordered to visit each corps area headquarters and advise with the corps area commanders and the state authorities with reference to the organization of the guard divisions allocated to the various corps areas.

The table of tentative allotments has been prepared, showing the number of troops to be organized in each state, under the nation defense act. A minimum enlisted strength of approximately 423,000 men must be provided at the peace organization of the National Guard.

Trophy for Battleship Oklahoma.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The battleship Oklahoma, attached to the Atlantic Fleet, has been awarded a bronze trophy for excellence in small-arms practice for vessels of the battleship class for the year ending last June 30. Operating conditions in both the Pacific and Asiatic Fleets during the year were such that only a very limited amount of small-arms practice was conducted, the Navy Department announces, and no trophies were awarded in those fleets.

Turks Defeated by Armenians.
Associated Press
CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—

The Armenians have defeated the Turkish Nationalists on the plains at the foot of Mount Ararat, near Etchmiadin, the seat of the chief patriarch, according to advices reaching here.

Let us end mistakes in shaving

Hot towels and finger-rubbing no longer necessary

LET us all know the present day facts on shaving. There is no need to use hot towels to soften the beard. Nor to rub the beard. Nor to submit our face to a lather that dries quickly on the face and irritates the skin.

Once such things were considered a necessary evil in shaving. But they are without reason today. For science has found a better way of preparing the beard for the razor. An easier way. And a quicker way. It lies in the use of Palmolive Shaving Cream. And to show what a big difference it makes in shaving, we are sending a trial tube free to every man who requests it.

Quick action

The secret of softening the beard is in emulsifying the oil that coats every hair of the beard. And Palmolive lather instantly emulsifies that oil. Then the beard—a horny substance—quickly absorbs water. This makes the hair easy to cut. With the ordinary cream or soap you have to supply hot towels or rub the beard before it can be thoroughly moistened.

Lasting lather

Palmolive lather stays moist and foamy on the face for 10 minutes. You don't have to relather as you do with the ordinary cream.

This lather is also a lotion. It contains palm and olive oils. Thus your skin is soothed and refreshed in shaving. You need no other lotion.

A new kind of a shave

You'll change your whole conception of shaving when you use Palmolive. And this we urge you to do at once. A trial tube will be sent free. There is no charge of any kind, not even for postage. So be sure to take advantage of this opportunity. Mail the coupon now.

GEN. HAWKINS, CIVIL WAR VETERAN, KILLED

First New York Volunteer, 89, Is Struck by Auto on Fifth Avenue.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Brigadier-General Rush C. Hawkins, who won fame during the Civil War as commander of "Hawkins' Zouaves," died at St. Vincent Hospital here today from a fractured skull suffered last night, when he was struck by an automobile on Fifth avenue. He was 89 years old.

Gen. Hawkins was said to have been the first New York volunteer in the Civil War. He had previously served in the Mexican war as an enlisted man.

Gen. Hawkins was widely known for his book and art collections and his writings on art subjects. He was art commissioner to the Paris Exposition in 1889. Several years ago he completed and opened to the public, at Providence, R. I., the Ann Mary Brown Memorial, a building containing a collection of paintings by early and recent painters, a room of early printed books and another of family relics and manuscripts. The museum is a memorial to his wife.

EXPLOSIVE TESTS THIS WEEK ON OLD BATTLESHIP INDIANA

Bombs Will Be Placed in Effort to Determine Effect Had They Been Dropped From the Air.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Explosive tests will be made this week with the old Battleship Indiana in lower Chesapeake Bay, by placing bombs in various parts of the ship to demonstrate their destructive effect had they been dropped from the air.

Already airplanes flying over the Indiana have demonstrated the practicability of hitting a target of that size from a height of 4000 to 8000 feet, but the bombs used were dummies and the test was merely one of accuracy.

After the bombing experiments the old warship will be anchored in Tangier Sound as a target for ships of the Atlantic Fleet, which will use a new type of projectile.

CHURCHES FAILING, BISHOP SAYS

Bishop Charles H. Brent of Buffalo, former chaplain-general of the American Expeditionary Forces, preaching yesterday in Christ Church Cathedral, said the churches were not succeeding in the task of "extending the kingdom of God in our land." He cited statistics to show that a majority of all Americans, some 60,000,000, profess no religious connection.

Bishop Brent said the present political campaign is "conspicuous for its sordidness, muckraking and mutual recriminations."

Pepto-Mangan, the Red Blood Builder, Does Away With Languor

If you don't feel like doing things, you won't. If you wonder where some people get all their energy, the answer is from good food which in turn makes rich, red blood.

If your food does not give the nourishment and vigor it should, it is most likely that your blood is so weak that it needs a little extra help for a time to build it up to normal strength. Thousands of men and women have been restored to vigorous health and lasting happiness by Gude's Pepto-Mangan. This beneficial blood tonic contains the very properties so vitally needed to improve the blood. Pepto-Mangan, if taken for a few weeks, will enrich the blood and create thousands of the tiny red blood cells that are so necessary to carry nourishment and strength to every part of the body.

Be sure to ask your druggist for "Gude's" when you order Pepto-Mangan. For convenience it is prepared in liquid and tablet form, both possessing exactly the same medicinal properties. "Gude's" is the genuine Pepto-Mangan. Look for the name "Gude's" on the package.

gestant in the saliva. That is to digest the starch deposits which otherwise cling and may form acid. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

These results come from every application. Twice a day the teeth's great enemies are effectively combated. The benefits to teeth are such as old methods never brought.

Some results of Pepsodent are instant. The very first use reveals some of the benefits. Within a week the delightful results can be usually seen in the mirror.

Send the coupon for the 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

The book we send will tell the reason for each new result. You will know how natural and how necessary are the effects. You will see and feel that teeth are cleaned far better than before.

These are the methods science now advises. Make this ten-day test.

Five New Ways

That science found to benefit the teeth

Dental science, after years of research, has evolved new methods of teeth cleaning. Highest authorities now approve the new principles. And millions of people are employing these methods, largely by dental advice.

They mean a new era in teeth protection—whiter, cleaner, safer teeth. This is to urge that you make a ten-day test and watch the results for yourself.

Film—the great enemy

The chief object is to fight the film, the cause of most tooth troubles.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Old ways of brushing have left much of it intact. So millions have found that well-brushed teeth discolored and decayed.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Very few people, however careful, have escaped these film-caused troubles.

Now ways to combat it

Dental science has now found efficient film combatants. High authorities ties have proved this by many careful tests. Now leading dentists everywhere advise their daily application.

The methods are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. The results they bring are quick and apparent. And this ten-day test, at your command, will show you what they mean.

Pepsodent attacks the film in two efficient ways. Then it keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

These five ways

Each use of Pepsodent brings these five effects:

- 1—A two-fold attack on film.
- 2—Well-polished teeth.
- 3—A multiplied salivary flow.
- 4—Multiplied starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling.
- 5—Multiplied alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Other desired effects

Pepsodent also aids Nature in its teeth-protecting efforts. It multiplies the salivary flow, the constant tooth protector. It multiplies the starch di-

34 OF 84 ARRAIGNED FOR GAMBLING FINED

Dentist and Seven Men Arrested in His Home Are Discharged.

Eighty-four men and boys charged with gambling were arraigned in the police courts today and 43 of them were discharged for "insufficient evidence." Police are required to testify that they saw actual gambling in order to sustain their cases. Fines were assessed against 34 defendants and seven cases were continued. Forty of the defendants were arrested in six raids last night following a number of complaints, and the others were arrested Saturday.

Marion Young, a dentist, of 4209A Arco avenue, and seven men arrested with him at his home, were among the defendants. It developed that the raid was made by the gambling squad because of an anonymous letter and Judge Ittner declared that the writer of such a letter was "a contemptible puppy." The eight men were discharged, policemen being able to testify only to having found money and cards on a table.

Two Dice Players Fined. Seven men who had been playing with dice in the rear of the Shepard School, Salena and Potomac streets, scattered when policemen approached. The latter fired several shots in the air and arrested three of the men, two of whom were fined $5 each. Those fined are Albert Koenig of 3426 Wisconsin avenue and Anthony Orth of 2206 Cherokee street.

Six negroes were arrested Saturday night at King's highway and the Frisco Railroad. Police found $22 in their dice game. Five of the negroes were fined $10 each and the other $5. Three negroes arrested last night for playing with dice in the rear of 1416 Chestnut street were fined $5 each.

Of 10 men arrested last night in a saloon at 1500 South Third street, for playing pitch, three were fined $5 each. They were Homer and Raymond Bonny of 1415 South Broadway and Elmer Snyder of 1035 South Second street.

Of 16 negroes arrested at 2131 Chestnut street, in a dice game, 15 were fined $5 each, and one, Rice Stevens, was fined $25, when it appeared that loaded dice were found in his possession.

Buffalo Jeweler Also Recognizes Platinum Mountings Found on Mother of Cleveland Man.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 25.—Positive identification of Albert Johnson, alias Joyce, who was killed in the holdup of the Bedford branch of the Cleveland Trust Co., as one of two men who robbed him of between $60,000 and $200,000 in jewelry and diamonds at Buffalo on Oct. 8 was made last night by Melvin Lowenthal, Buffalo jewelry salesman.

Lowenthal also identified platinum mountings found on Mrs. Mildred Johnson of New York, mother of the robber, but could not identify the unset diamonds.

Mrs. Johnson is held as a suspicious person, but, according to Chief Assistant Prosecutor William J. Corrigan, Lowenthal's identification of the jewelry will result in the woman being indicted for receiving stolen property.

INCREASE IN FREIGHT HANDLING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—More than a million freight cars were loaded during the week ending Oct. 9, the American Railway Association announced yesterday, the total having been exceeded only once before. The Hard Wheat Crop Is 4% Quality and 96% Quantity

The hard winter wheat crop this year was heralded as a prize-winner. It looked fine—there was lots of it—but it was woefully lacking in quality.

Most of the grain outgrew its strength. A hot sun and too much moisture filled it out with starch and water before strength-giving gluten could develop. It is weak and capable of producing only ordinary flour.

The wheat we need for Enterprise Flour must be solid and full of gluten. It's scarce and hard to find, for it grew only on the few scattered spots where there wasn't so much moisture. Of the whole crop only four per cent was wheat of this kind.

Because of its scarcity we had to pay the highest premium we have ever paid for every bushel of this quality wheat that we bought. But we had to have it—and we got it.

Enterprise will cost more this year, but you can absolutely depend on its quality. It will give you the same fine results that it always has in the past. The economy of paying for quality in flour has never been so apparent as it will be this year.

WOMEN LEARN VOTING METHODS AT BOOTHS

Instructions Being Given at Downtown Stores Under Auspices of Voters' League.

Hundreds of women availed themselves of the opportunity today to obtain personal instruction in the methods of voting, preparatory to the general elections Nov. 2, at booths in the downtown department stores, conducted by the Missouri League of Women Voters.

Booths were open this morning in three department stores, and 40 women were helped at the least busy of these in the first two hours of the morning, while at the busiest there was a changing crowd of 25 or 30 women constantly putting their questions to the four women instructors.

When the weather is again fair there is expected to be an even greater rush of women to the booths, as the influx of shoppers increases. Later a booth will be opened in a fourth department store. The booths will be open all week.

The instructors were surprised to find a large number of the women were already clearly informed as to the general routine of voting, but wanted help in settling some one point. The questions asked were for the most part intelligent, it was said.

One of the chief stumbling blocks is the method of electing the President by electoral rather than popular vote. There were many exclamations of "Oh! Don't you just write down Cox's name on the Republican ticket if you want to vote for him and want the other offices Republican?" or the like.

Instructions in Voting.
It was explained to each questioner that to "split" a ticket on the presidential election the names of the opposing electors must be substituted. As a rule, the women asked few questions, and assimilated the information given them apparently with ease. Many simply said they "wanted to know how to vote" and the routine of explanation was about as follows:

First, women must have registered. On election day the women were told to take the tickets of the six parties having slates and enter the voting booths, remaining not longer than five minutes. To vote a "straight" ticket, that is, for all candidates of one party, they were told to fold that ballot so that the election judge's initials might be seen and hand it over, remaining to make sure it is deposited in the ballot box.

The other ballots must be returned to the judge, unmarked. The method of substituting names to vote a "split" ticket was also explained. Coming to the matter of the 15 proposed amendments to the State Constitution, the instructors said that the word "no" must be scratched out in order to vote in favor of an amendment, and vice versa.

No Partisan Discussion.
No partisan advice was given by the women at the booths, nor was any partisan discussion allowed. However, literature supporting the "good roads" amendment was placed at each booth.

Women residents of St. Louis County were told that for the present election registration is not necessary in the county and the differences between the city and county ballots were pointed out.

Many women expressed surprise when told that they must not sign their own names to their ballots. Various questions of eligibility to vote were explained patiently. A few men asked questions at the booths, usually giving the explanation, "My wife wanted me to find out for her."

The booths will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The members of the League of Women Voters are serving voluntarily and new "shifts" of instructors are provided for each half day. Those on duty this morning were Mrs. T. W. Van Sholack of 5798 Pershing avenue, Mrs. D. G. Haynes of the Buckingham Hotel, Mrs. Alexander Langsdorf of 1205 Amherst place, and Mrs. Harry Thomson of 5528 Waterman avenue, at Famous-Barr; Mrs. C. C. Fox of 5359 Pershing avenue and Mrs. Robert Burnett of 745 Westgate avenue, at Scruggs, Vandervoort and Barney's, and Mrs. J. William Caldwell of 4119 McPherson avenue and Mrs. Herbert R. Hopkins of 5516 Cabanne avenue, at Stix, Baer and Fuller's.

COX PREDICTS SURPRISE IN EAST
FOR LEAGUE FOESDeclares Deception Regarding Covenant Almost Succeeded, but Now the Truth
Has Triumphed.RESENTMENT AGAINST ROUND ROBIN LEADERSCandidate Asserts That a "Spiritual Fervor Has Seized the Hearts of the People."

By the Associated Press.
BECKLEY, W. Va., Oct. 25.—Lawyer questions and the League of Nations were principal subjects of Gov. Cox of Ohio in his campaign through the West Virginia coal mining regions today. He stressed arguments that the league was a pledge to American soldiers and their mothers to prevent future wars. To audiences of miners, railroad and other workers, the Democratic presidential candidate told of humanitarian and progressive legislation adopted in Ohio.

Charges were made in hostile newspapers and in handbills circulated among the Governor's crowds today that he had ordered militia his labor controversies at Akron and Canton, O. They called attention to his statement that he had never thrown a soldier's uniform into, nor had a shot been fired in any Ohio industrial controversy while he was Governor. Today's attack was met by the Governor with the statement that his record was public and he would stand upon it. Gov. Cox was accompanied through West Virginia by A. B. Koonz, Democratic gubernatorial candidate, and other candidates.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Surprises in election results for his opponents in many parts of the country were predicted by Gov. Cox while enroute last night from New York to West Virginia, where he is campaigning today.

"The foes of the league," said the Governor, "will have their surprises in New England, in some of the Atlantic states, in the Middle West and the Far West. I have talked with men of long experience in New York who have seen manifestations of public feeling in presidential campaigns and their judgment is that the tide that set in about two weeks ago is unprecedented."

Gov. Cox in his statement declared there was profound resentment against Republican leaders back of the "round robin."

"In the last 10 days," he said, "and particularly in the last week, every audience that I have addressed has given evidence of this when the names of the leading conspirators were recited. I have in mind Senators Lodge, Brandegee, Moses, Root, Newberry and Harding."

Deception regarding the League of Nations almost succeeded, Gov. Cox added, but now "the truth has triumphed." Senator Harding's election, the nominee said, would mean confusion regarding future disposition of the league, while the Senator's defeat, he said, would carry a significance that could not be misinterpreted, and further postponement of action by the Senate would be out of the question.

Gov. Cox said he was advised that in one day 7000 contributions, mostly small, had been received at New York headquarters, and indicated, he declared, a popular awakening to the reaction against the "round robin" amounting to millions of dollars and "spiritual fervor that has seized the hearts of the people."

Stating that he had spoken in 36 states with an itinerary arranged without regard to past political alignments, the Governor said:

"On the Last Turn.

"We are on the last turn in the campaign. As we go back to the Middle West, it is perfectly apparent that our estimate was appraised correctly almost two months ago, when the statement was made that political pluralities as established by past election contents meant nothing this year."

Gov. Cox was accompanied this morning by Joseph F. Guffey, National Committee man for Pennsylvania, E. M. Moore of Youngstown, O., the candidate's pre-convention manager, was another traveling companion of the Governor to remain with him.

A crowd greeted Gov. Cox at Union Station when he reached here, leaving his private car, the Governor passed through cheering throngs the President's room in the station, where he shook hands with hundreds during the hour his train stopped. Yielding to the crowd's insistence for a speech, the nominee expressed his "deep gratitude" for the demonstration.

"I say more," he added, "would be to trespass on the spirit of the Sabbath, and we are a religious people."

COX DENOUNCES SATURDAY EVENING POST FOR CARTOON

Declares It Has Thrown Off "Cloak of Non-Partisanship" and "Betrayed Its Mission" to Aid Harding.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Just before leaving here yesterday afternoon for West Virginia, Gov. Cox, Democratic presidential candidate, issued the following statement:

"Propaganda is not effective when it is labeled, but in the guise of it strangles the truth and molds the minds into which it is introduced as facts."

"I am just now in possession of a specimen of propaganda of this very sort. It is an advance copy of the Saturday Evening Post, known to a great public as a disinterested journal. In all its history it has been to the purpose of presenting the facts and atmosphere of political situations and to refrain from controversial positions."

"But the number of this magazine, which is to be distributed next Thursday, the last number before election, suddenly throws off the cloak of non-partisanship. For the first time in its history it resorts to the devices of partisan editorial and insidious cartoons to create a sentiment for the Republican ticket. In the cartoon I am represented as a newsboy, inventing false and sensational happenings for the purpose of selling my wares. My opponent ple who respect our religious traditions."

Among those who met Gov. Cox on his arrival were Attorney-General Palmer and Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President.

Cox Has 40-Hour Visit in New York;
Mrs. Cox Goes Home.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—After a 40-hour visit which his campaign managers declared had "won New York," Gov. Cox of Ohio left here yesterday afternoon for the last week of his campaign speaking.

Before entraining for West Virginia, and thence to Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio, the Democratic candidate expressed "entire confidence" in the outcome of the campaign. Throughout the day, except for an hour during which he drove around the city as guest of George White, Gov. Cox kept to his apartment, receiving the latest reports on the election outlook from his lieutenants in the field.

Among those who were closeted with him for conferences were E. H. Moore, who acted as the Governor's pre-convention manager, and E. M. Mack, Democratic National Committee man for New York; Geo. Foster Peabody and Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi.

In the course of the afternoon Mrs. Cox announced she had given her plan to accompany her husband on the Southern tour, returning to Dayton to await the outcome.

LONG'S NEW EXPENSE ACCOUNT
LISTS OUTLAY OF ONLY $868

Candidate Says Large Expenditures in Primary Have Caused Him to Cut Down Now.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The campaign expense account of Breckinridge Long, Democratic nominee for the Senate from Missouri, which reached the Secretary of the Senate today, shows an expenditure of only $868, in addition to the $4473 previously reported by Long as his expense in the primary campaign. No new contributions are listed.

The largest single item in the account is $650 for the printing of post cards. Salary of typists and other expenses of typewriters and tables absorbed the rest.

Long reports that he had no other expenses except that for personal travel and subsistence to the amount of $476, which, under the law, does not have to be included in the statement.

"The very small sum expended," writes the candidate, "is due to the fact that in the primary campaign for the nomination I expended a sum for the nomination as allowed by law and have consequently been assiduous in my observance of the requirements. I abandoned my headquarters, have no posters, have had no paid advertisements and have had no cost of addressing as indicated."

The limit of expenditure allowed by the law is $10,000. Long's statement was posted in St. Louis Saturday and therefore came within the legal time set for filing pre-election statements.

NATIONALISTS OF SOUTH AFRICA
APPROVE 'SELF-DETERMINATION'

Congress by Resolution Proclaims Sovereign Will of People and Claims Right to Secede.

By the Associated Press.
CAPETOWN, Oct. 25.—The Free State Nationalist Congress, in session here today, adopted resolutions supplemental to a declaration of party principles, proclaiming the sovereign will of the people of self-determination, their right to secede from Great Britain or break any existing bond between the Union and Great Britain and declaring opposition to a closer imperial union.

The resolutions advised, however, that no decisive step regarding secession be taken unless a majority of the people express such a desire through a referendum.

is depicted as kindly and wise. The impression is sought to be created that I am irresponsible; Senator Harding grave and reliable.

"Why has the Saturday Evening Post done this? Why has it betrayed its mission at the last minute of the eleventh hour of this campaign? The people know the answer. It has done this because its owner is one of the plutocratic group which knows what it wants of the next administration and how to get it from the syndicate which controls Senator Harding. It has done this because its owner is the head of the movement which has sought a subsidy from the Government for the delivery of national magazines. The Saturday Evening Post has imposed on the conscience of the American people, won by a long record of non-partisanship, and has become a Republican journal because the profiteers, who escape Government taxes by diverting to it millions of their dollars in advertising, want my opponent elected."

"Those subscribers, who, in good faith, have admitted this journal to their homes all over the United States, will turn its venal counsels out of doors."

$25,000 GIVEN TO COX
FUND BY A. A. RYANSays He Hopes League Will Be Saved and 'Blasphemous' Enemies Defeated.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Allan A. Ryan, who recently gained national prominence through breaking the corner on Stutz automobiles, has subscribed $25,000 to the Cox campaign fund for the purpose, as he announces, of exposing "sacrilegious" campaign methods employed by Republican interests through the medium of Harvey's Weekly, the editor of which played a leading part in bringing about the nomination of Senator Harding at Chicago.

Ryan's contribution was announced in the following letter received by Chairman White of the Democratic National Committee yesterday.

"The methods used against the Democratic ticket have been infamous from the beginning, but it remained for George Harvey in the corner of Stutz automobiles to profit from the sale of a counterfeit journal called Harvey's Weekly to add sacrilege and shame to the campaign methods of the party he is supporting and disgrace to the cause of the candidate he claims to have nominated."

"On page 27 of this sheet I observe a cartoon entitled 'Having Difficulty in Hanging the Masterpiece.' It represents Gov. Cox libelously caricatured, standing on a ladder labeled 'Public Confidence.' In his arms he has a picture. I hope that all who love the faith of their mothers imparted to them, who stand for the highest civilization, who have reverence for God and his works, will see what is in that picture which appeals to George Harvey as suitable for a political cartoon. It represents Uncle Sam as 'The Greatest Healer' (as he quotes the Harvey phrase) with a lampoon of the Sacred Heart of Jesus enveloping his figure, and above him are printed these words: 'Prof. Wilson's League of Nations. The Immaculate Conception.'"

"This journal, which thus defiles the purest article of Christian faith, is a by-product of the senatorial cabal. The men who pay his bills are the chief contributors to the heaviest supporters of the Harding campaign. With their money Christianity is mocked and sacrilege is committed in the name of the Republic. I hope the day will come when the people of this nation will visit the desired beneficiaries of this cartoon with the rebuke of defeat."

"I have today subscribed $25,000 to your cause in the hope that the League of Nations may be saved and its blasphemous enemies be defeated."

HERBERT PULTIZER SLIGHTLY HURT IN FALL OF AIRPLANE

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Oct. 25.—Herbert Pultizer, youngest son of the late Joseph Pultizer of New York, had a narrow escape yesterday when he was flying in an airplane, in which he was flying with the Marquis de Champs de Boisgobert, a former French Army pilot, fell five miles from Dijon. The plane crashed from Le Raincy Field near Paris. Mr. Pultizer merely suffered abrasions and bruises, but the pilot was pinned underneath the machine and died in a hospital half an hour later. The mechanic was unhurt.

The accident occurred when the Marquis, who was not sure of his whereabouts and was going 100 miles an hour, attempted to land the airplane by striking a tree. When the machine fell Mr. Pultizer and the mechanic were thrown clear of it.

Mr. Pultizer returned to Paris yesterday and planned to start in another airplane in the afternoon.

CUBAN CAMPAIGN
CLOSING; LITTLE
TALK OF REVOLTGen. Gomez, Popular Idol and Leader of 1912 Revolution, Is Liberal Nominee for Presidency.OPPOSED BY FORMER VICE PRESIDENTScattered Firing Expected on Election Day, Nov. 1, but No Organized Outbreak—Carrying of Arms Barred.

By the Associated Press.
HAVANA, Oct. 25.—The Cuban presidential campaign is nearing the end with little talk this year of a revolution.

The leader of the 1912 revolution, Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez, a former President, is the Liberal nominee. On the ticket with him is Miguel Arango, a former Conservative and a sugar millionaire. The Gomez attempt to overthrow the Government of President Menocal, who is serving his second term, brought many twists and changes in Cuban politics and yesterday the old party lineup was shattered.

In the place of the once strong constructive party there is the coalition or National League, comprising members of the conservative and popular wings. The coalition nominee is Dr. Alfredo Zayas, candidate for Vice President under Gomez in 1912, and supported by Gomez as the Liberal candidate for President four years later. Zayas, known as the founder of the Liberals, took no part in the Gomez revolution. The vice presidential candidate is Francisco Carrillo A. Zayas, Liberal.

Election Designed to Prevent Fraud. The election, to be held Monday, Nov. 1, will be the first under the law framed by Major-General Enoch Crowder, who served as military governor of Cuba during the Spanish-American war.

There is great interest in the campaign. Gen. Gomez's followers are doing the most shouting. The General is out in the provinces, campaigning being stopped occasionally in his travels by the dynamiting of bridges over which he was expected to pass. As a precautionary measure President Menocal has issued a decree against carrying arms. Soldiers are held in readiness for any emergency, and the polls will be guarded by troops on election day. Gomez' managers declared yesterday they could be defeated only by fraud. Already they are obtaining evidence, they said, to prove conspiracy to defraud their candidate. The army, which captured Gomez, seems to be more concerned as to the outcome, as some high officers are apprehensive as to how they might fare should Gomez come into power.

Gomez is described as a popular idol. Zayas was an intellectual. Unquestionably much of Gen. Gomez's strength is due to the popularity of his wife, whose charity while mistress of the palace is everywhere commended.

Cuba expects some "stuttering" bloodshed on election day, but those who fear another revolution see little danger before spring, the time set for a change in administration. Gomez himself has demanded that his followers keep within the law. So has Zayas, and President Menocal has announced that outlaw bands may expect quick work from army machine guns.

ARMENIAN QUESTION REFERRED BACK TO SUPREME COUNCILSession of Council Considers French and English for Official Language, Without Deciding.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 25.—A particular subject considered by the Council of the League of Nations at Saturday's session was whether French or English should be the official language of the permanent international court, but no decision was reached.

The council decided to refer back to the Supreme Council of the Allied Powers the question of Armenia, it being unable to accept a mandate for the country. The council decided, however, to accept the guardianship of the minorities in the territories transferred under the Austrian and Bulgarian treaties.

The appointment of a commission to settle the dispute between Sweden and Finland over the Aland Islands was approved. One member of the commission probably will be an American.

BRITISH PREMIER
PRESENTS NEW PAY
OFFER TO MINERSConfers With His Experts, Then Goes Into Conference With Labor Leaders in Effort to End Strike.CONFIDENCE FELT SETTLEMENT IS NEARMen Expect Concessions; Government Wants Heavier Output; Railway Men
Not Eager to Go Out.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 25.—Premier Lloyd George and members of the Government this morning conferred with Government experts concerning a new set of figures for wages of the coal miners and production in the coal industry. Later the Government leaders and representatives of the miners met and continued the negotiations begun Sunday for a settlement of the miners' strike.

Conversations were renewed at 10 Downing street yesterday between Premier Lloyd George and executives of the Miners' Federation, and are confidently expected to lead to a settlement of the miners' strike, which last week threatened to involve Great Britain in an industrial crisis. Prominent executives of the federation and Government officials are quoted by newspapers here as being optimistic.

Increased Output of Coal. It is believed an arrangement will be reached by which such side can at least claim it has not yielded its main contention. It is asserted Premier Lloyd George will submit proposals which, he hopes, will make an increased output of coal so certain that it will be possible to grant immediately the increase of wages demanded by the coal diggers. Miners' leaders are quoted as saying they are confident the Government will accept a way to concede the miners' claims.

The newspapers continue hopeful, for the most part, and express relief that the National Union of Railwaysmen, which has been on strike since last week, is under- stood, will not be taken before Wednesday.

The Labor Union Congress will meet Wednesday, and there are hopes that a railway strike, even if eventually called, may be rather half-hearted. Many messages from local branches are said to have been received at union headquarters, expressing hostility to the idea of a strike.

Railway Strike Opposed.

It is said that until a ballot of the workers has been taken, the attitude of J. H. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, will certainly influence a large number of the members. In a speech yesterday, Thomas, while expressing sympathy for the miners, warned his audience of the dangers of a strike, which he said he realized "might lead to the downfall of all of us." He declared he was firm in his determination not to lead such a strike.

It is said the new formula, which the Government has proposed to the miners, while giving the miners 50 cents shillings advance (about 50 cents) will insure a substantial increase in the output of coal.

Premier's Statement. In the House of Commons this afternoon Premier Lloyd George said he was hopeful that the present negotiations between the Government and the miners would succeed in ending the strike, which he said he realized "might lead to the downfall of all of us." He declared he was firm in his determination not to lead such a strike.

Contrary to expectations, it was announced in the House by Bonar Law, the Government leader, that the Government intended to proceed today with the bill introduced last week granting the Government unusual powers for dealing with an emergency such as might grow out of the strike situation. He moved in discussing his motion, Bonar Law said the strike negotiations had reached a point when it was impossible to say anything whatever about them, but it was conceivable that a deadlock might arise.

AIRPLANE PERFECTED IN WHICH DRIVER CAN VARY SPEED AT WILL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Oct. 25.—An airplane of which the speed can be varied at the will of the aviator at between 60 and 200 kilometers an hour (35 to 125 miles), has just been invented by M. Levasseur and Gastonville. The machine is a biplane, so constructed that the surface of the upper plane may be extended or restricted from 30 to 50 cubic feet. In this way the speed is lessened. By the slightest touch of the lever the surface of the plane expands or contracts.

The tests of the new airplane have been successful, and experts believe that it will revolutionize flying.

Harding Restates Policies and Declares Democrats
Avoid Domestic IssuesMARION, O., Oct. 25.
In a statement given out last night, Senator Harding, Republican presidential candidate, restated his position on domestic and foreign policies, and demanded that the Democrats answer charges he has made against them during the campaign. His statement follows:

"I believe that the men and women of this country are entitled to receive from any political party seeking their support a clear answer upon the predominant issues which affect the future course of America."

"Seldom in the history of our country has there been such an avoidance of this duty upon the part of any candidates as has been evident among our opponents."

"The American people are satisfied that the conduct of our domestic affairs has been grossly mismanaged."

"They hunger for a constructive American policy. It has been my sense of obligation to treat with clarity and definition the Republican plan for putting our house in order."

"I call upon the Democratic party to answer the charge that its management of domestic affairs has brought us to the brink of an industrial crisis in 1914 from which only war was saved, and is even now leading us toward another precipice."

"There has been no answer to the well-known fact that they have cost America untold billions of dollars and the precious lives of our sons by unrepealed laws for war persisted in for political expediency."

Peace and Reconstruction. "They have made no answer to the charge that they were equally unprepared for peace and reconstruction."

"They have made no answer to the charge that their experiment with the American railways, their industrial policy, and their management of the Federal Government hundreds of thousands of unnecessary employees has cost the taxpayers of this country a fearful financial burden which our men and women, and even their children, will have to pay."

"They have made no answer to the charge that their rule has been one of grotesque inefficiency."

"They have made no answer to the charge that during the control, which they now seek to perpetuate, they have perverted the form of government of our republic and overridden the purposes of our Constitution by maintaining extreme and undemocratic centralization or executive power which would have been an offense to Thomas Jefferson and to Grover Cleveland as much as it would have been to Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt."

Republican Policy. "I have spent the campaign in setting forth a constructive Republican policy. I have demanded the restoration of the constitutional Government of a representative democracy, which America has lost."

"I have spent the campaign in setting forth a constructive Republican policy. I have demanded the restoration of the constitutional Government of a representative democracy, which America has lost."

VOTERS MAY TRANSFER
UP TO WEDNESDAYChanges of Address Must Be Recorded by That Date—Absentees May Register.

The office of the Election Board, in the City Hall, will be open until 9 o'clock tonight and Tuesday night, and until 10 Wednesday night, for the transfer of the names of voters who have removed from one ward or precinct to another since the registration period closed, Sept. 16. Wednesday will be the last day for making such changes.

Wednesday will also be the day for the enrollment of those who vote for or out of the city during the registration period, Sept. 13-15, inclusive. The Election Board has suggested that those who plan to apply for enrollment Wednesday, on these grounds, should call at the office before Wednesday and obtain blanks, which they can fill out and submit Wednesday, thus saving time in an anticipated rush.

Extra Clerks Employed.

Fifty extra clerks have been added for this week's extra requirements. It is planned to place desks in the City Hall rotunda for clerks making the enrollment, if the volume of business, as is expected, overflows the narrow corridor of the board's office.

The Election Board has made a request that men and women vote in printed in today's Post-Dispatch, and that they study it, decide what changes, if any, they wish to make in their party tickets, mark one ticket as they wish to vote it, and take it to the polling places. The ballot, containing 15 separate proposals, which is also printed today, should be cut out and used in the same manner.

Ballot in Six Tickets. The ballot which the voter receives will not be a blanket sheet of parallel columns, as is the copy printed in the Post-Dispatch. It will be six separate tickets, stapled together at the top. The voter tears off his ticket, and if he wishes to scratch any candidate thereon he can write in place of that name, a name taken from another ticket. The constitutional ballot will be in practically the same shape in which it appears in this paper.

School teachers have asked children to cut out copies of the official ballot and take them to school for instruction in the method of voting. The children will be expected to give this instruction, in turn, to parents who may need it.

Harding's Foreign Policy. "As to our foreign policy and America's full expectation of becoming a member of a wise association of nations, with the preservation of our own independence and national spirit, I have given a conscientious and practical proposal."

"I have stated that I am wholly against the proposal to approve our membership in the League of Nations as our opponents insist that it shall be written. Even in the hands of our opponents that program is impossible. Even were our opponents to be elected, it would result in a hopeless blockade as a sequel to the one which the President of the United States has carried on since the peace treaty was submitted to the representatives of the people for approval."

"I have endeavored to serve in this campaign, not merely to be elected but to set before the American people sincerely and calmly a definite policy for the administration of the United States to bring our people out of the jungle of mismanagement and into the light of a stable good fortune. I have endeavored to serve by doing what I could to harmonize public opinion and unite America behind a foreign policy which shall be wise, generous and humane, though it refuses to mortgage America to the Old World."

"We do not know what our opponents stand for; I stand for a united America, a humane America, an efficient America, America first."

HARDING SPENDS DAY WORKING ON FINAL CAMPAIGN SPEECHESG. O. P. Nominee Gives Particular Attention to Columbus Address for Saturday Night.

By the Associated Press.
MARION, O., Oct. 25.—Senator Harding began the last full week of the campaign with another day spent at his desk working on the final public utterances with which he will rest his candidacy.

The speech to be delivered Saturday night at Columbus occupied the nominee's major attention. Other speeches are to be delivered at Cleveland, Akron and Cincinnati. In all of these addresses he is expected to enunciate again his position on the League of Nations and also upon the domestic policies he has advocated during the campaign.

WATERWAYS MEETING CONTINUES

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 25.—The International Joint Waterways Commission is expected to conclude its hearing here today, when Michigan business men and others will continue their testimony as to the need for a direct water route from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic. During the sessions of the commission Friday and Saturday, no opposition to the proposed tidewater development was voiced. It was said last night some opponents had expressed their desire to appear today.

Two members of the commission will hold a hearing in Grand Rapids today, at which shippers and business men in Western Michigan will testify.

Rate tickets, stapled together at the top. The voter tears off his ticket, and if he wishes to scratch any candidate thereon he can write in place of that name, a name taken from another ticket. The constitutional ballot will be in practically the same shape in which it appears in this paper.

School teachers have asked children to cut out copies of the official ballot and take them to school for instruction in the method of voting. The children will be expected to give this instruction, in turn, to parents who may need it.

RIGHTS COMMEMORATEDCovenant's Protective Meas-

Earners, He Declares.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Labor's reasons for supporting the League of Nations are given in a telegram from Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to William Michaels of Carpenters' Union, No. 943, Tulsa, Ok., in reply to Michaels' request for a statement on the effect the league would have upon American wage earners.

President Gompers' telegram to Michaels follows:

"The American Federation of Labor convention in 1919, by an almost unanimous vote, endorsed the peace treaty with the labor provisions and the covenant of the League of Nations. The nine specific points in the labor section constitute what is known as labor's bill of rights. The preamble and nine points are:

1. The members of the League of Nations, recognizing that the well-being, physical, moral and intellectual, or industrial wage earners is of supreme international importance, have framed a permanent machinery associated with that of the League of Nations to further this great end. They recognize that differences of climate, habits and customs of economic opportunity and industrial tradition make strict uniformity in the conditions of labor difficult of immediate attainment. But holding as they do, that labor should not be regarded merely as an article of commerce, they think that there are methods and principles for regulating labor conditions which all industrial communities should endeavor to apply so far as their special circumstances will permit. Among these methods and principles the following seem to the members of the League of Nations to be of special and urgent importance:

1. The guiding principle above enunciated that labor should not be regarded merely as a commodity or article of commerce.

2. The right of association for all lawful purposes, free from employment as well as by the employer.

3. The payment to the employed of a wage adequate to maintain a reasonable standard of life as this is understood in their time and country.

4. The adoption of an eight-hour day or a 48-hour week as the standard to be aimed at where it has not already been obtained.

5. The adoption of a weekly rest of at least 24 hours, which should include Sunday whenever practicable.

6. The abolition of child labor and the imposition of such limitations on the labor of young persons as shall permit the opportunity of their education and assure their proper physical development.

7. The principle that men and women should receive equal remuneration for work of equal value.

8. The standard set by law in each country with respect to the conditions of labor should have due regard to the equitable economic treatment of all workers lawfully resident therein.

9. Each state should make provision for a system of inspection in which women should take part in order to insure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the employed.

"It is a document for humanity. The nine points are well fitted to guide the policy of the League of Nations and if adopted will confer lasting benefits upon the wage earners of the world. Standards of advanced countries are given this absolute protection against any possible concerted action to lower them on the part of less advanced nations."

"In no case shall any member of the League of Nations be asked or required as a result of the adoption of any recommendation or draft convention by the conference, to diminish the protection afforded by its existing legislation to the workers concerned."

"SAMUEL GOMPERS"

Reduction of Armament. In addition to the statement included in the telegram, labor holds according to the official pronouncements of the American Federation of Labor, that the League of Nations means a reduction of military and naval strength and a consequent reduction of effort and expenditure for those things that it means a reduction of the manufacture of munitions as well as a great international effort to forward those measures that make for the improvement of the standards and the health of the people in all signatory nations.

It is pointed out by Gompers that there are now 41 nations that adhere to the League of Nations. The only nations of any consequence withholding their support being Russia, the United States and Mexico. Gompers says, has reversed the attitude held by the Carranza regime and today expresses an ardent desire for membership as soon as that is possible.

Campaign Committee's Statement.
In an official statement the National Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee of the American Federation of Labor further expresses the viewpoint of the workers on the League of Nations:
"The League of Nations has been attacked from two directions. It has been opposed by the extreme reactionaries and by the extreme radicals. Somewhere there is insincerity and perhaps it is at both extremes. The League of Nations offers the only hope of the present for the peaceful settlement of international difficulties and it offers the best hope for the expression and fulfillment of liberal ideals throughout the world."

"It is but natural that reaction should oppose the covenant for the covenant provides the best check on reaction and the best avenue for the expression of the ideals that take mankind forward and upward to better things."

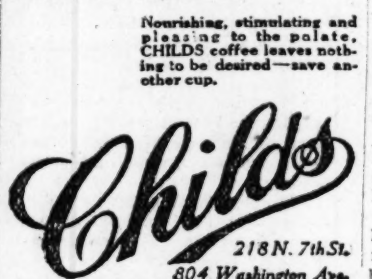

"Extreme radicals oppose the covenant on the ground that the league means a stiffening everywhere against change. That is vicious untruth. The league does provide the best possible check against turbulent and unhealthy upheaval of destructive character, but it facilitates and encourages evolutionary development and progress."

A TRIBUTE

In 1754 a solitary monk planted two coffee seeds in a monastery garden at Rio de Janeiro.

From those two seeds the plants grew and spread until Brazil became the greatest coffee growing country in the world.

Today millions pay tribute to the wisdom and foresight of that solitary monk as they imbibe the delicious coffee served at CHILDS.

ITALIAN OFFICIALS INQUIRING INTO DEATH OF MISSION MEMBER

Passengers on Ship Questioned About Professor Who Failed to Return After Hunting Trip.

By the Associated Press.
GENOA, Oct. 25.—On the arrival of the Italian steamer Principessa Mafalda from Buenos Aires yesterday the police interrogated the passengers concerning the tragic death of Prof. Mario Mazzei, who, when the steamer touched at Dakar, departed for a hunting expedition and never returned to the boat.

Prof. Mazzei was a member of the Italian mission which last June visited Brazil on the Italian warship Roma. After the Principessa Mafalda had left Dakar a wireless message was received saying a body, supposed to be that of Mazzei, had been found.

No money was found on the body, although when he landed at Dakar the professor carried 15,000 lire.

Shorty runs into "Snapper" Teebo!
Atlanta, Ga.
Wednesday

DEAR PETE:

Checked up our old dormitory pal "Snapper" Teebo this morning while waiting on an appointment down Bechtel St. "Snap" wanted to know a bucketful about my visit to the Camel factories. "Sell us, old apple seed," says Snapper, "you're on the inside!" "Snapper" still has that mighty annoying way of saying: "But that doesn't surprise me!" Pete, someday I'll soak him. Maybe that will be a surprise!

Anyhow—when I explained about the millions of Camels R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. made daily, what does the old bird sputter but:—"why—Shorty, they'd have to make that many to supply the demand! Camels have the quality smokers want! And they have the most wonderful mellow mild body and the most refreshing flavor ever created in a cigarette! Of course they make Camels by millions; of course they buy enough revenue stamps from Uncle Sam every week-day to build a duplicate of the Winston-Salem post office! why not? Smokers insist on Camels!"

Then "Snap" got to spilling some real Camel selling stuff! "Shorty," says he, "write the Reynolds folks for me that I travel and talk some with the world in a year. And, I want you to put it on record that in all the times I've pulled Camels out of my pocket to supply somebody's shortage, I've heard enough fine things said about 'em to fill a fat volume! 'That's my brand,' 'Camels are a wonderful cigarette,' 'gee, but this is like getting money from home,' etc."

"And, Shorty, what's the answer? Why—Camels blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos meets the universal taste! That's it! Now, get me right—they ALL open their shutters for Camels! You'll find that all over the nation! And, that's the hole story, old golf ball!"

Pete, you pet phonograph, did you ever hear a better record?

Sincerely Shorty.

Secrets of London Complexion Doctors

Famous London specialists who cater to titled ladies and others of social prominence, employ a remarkable method of complexion rejuvenation. One undergoing this treatment visits the beauty doctor late in the afternoon, has something dabbed over her face, then, heavily veiled, departs in her motor car. This is repeated daily for a week or so, when a complexion of snowy purity and exquisite delicacy is in evidence. The secret of this method is—ordinary mercerized wax. Anyone can apply the wax without assistance of a specialist. An ounce of it (obtainable at drug stores here as well as in England), usually suffices. It is used like cold cream before retiring, and washed off mornings. Its success is due to a peculiar absorbent property which gradually removes worn-out particles of cuticle, revealing the younger, healthier skin beneath. A wonderful wrinkle-chaser, also in vogue among the elite of powdered aristocrats in a half-hint of "used" as a wash lotion, this completely and quickly effaces even the deepest lines.

7 MEN ARRESTED AFTER SHOOTING AT SALOON

Policemen Find One Wounded and Another Backed Against Wall After Hurry-Up Call.

A fire alarm and hurry-up police call were sent in from the 5200 block on West Florissant avenue at 2:30 a. m. today, and when policemen reached that neighborhood they found Lloyd McNulty, 35 years old, 4123 Natural Bridge avenue, a plasterer, with a revolver in hand, and Thomas Brennan, 2944A St. Louis avenue, with his back to the wall of the saloon of Fred Vahle, 5248 West Florissant. In the front of the saloon was a taxicab in which was Clyde Futrell, 20, of 2818A North Newstead avenue, with bullet wounds in the left leg and thigh.

McNulty, Brennan, Futrell and Abe Peterson, 27, of 5333 North Union avenue; Fred Jones, 20, of 3806 Page boulevard, chauffeur of the taxicab; Fred Zelnor of 5708 North Union, and Walter Kennedy, 28, of 1110 Perry street, were arrested.

McNulty explained that he, Peterson, Kennedy and Vahle were in the saloon when the taxicab stopped and the other men, led by Zelnor, came in. Zelnor felt McNulty's pockets, as though looking for firearms. McNulty, suspecting robbery, seized Vahle's revolver from behind the bar and as Zelnor and the others bolted for the door, fired, the bullets hitting Futrell.

Peterson, who ran to a police box, became confused and turned in the fire alarm as well as notifying the police.

Futrell was taken to the city hospital. He and Zelnor deny there was any intention to rob the place.

WATCHMAN FIRES AT MEN CARRYING OUT TAILOR'S GOODS

33 Bolts of Cloth Found in Automobile After Three Men Fleo—Owner of Car Held.

Three men who were carrying bolts of cloth to an automobile at Seventeenth and Olive streets at 3 a. m. today fled and left the machine when a private watchman fired six shots at them.

It was found that the front door of Max Bond's tailor shop, 1624 Olive street, had been forced open. In the automobile policemen found 33 bolts of cloth and several shorter lengths of goods, which Bond identified and valued at $3000.

The automobile had an Illinois tag, and was found to be the property of J. E. Smith, of 448 North Twenty-first street, East St. Louis. Smith, who is a boxing promoter and owner of two service cars, reported to the East St. Louis police at 3:30 a. m. that the machine had been stolen from him. Grand and Easton avenues, St. Louis. He said he tried to report the loss of his car to a St. Louis policeman, but that he was "pretty well tanked," and did not make himself clear to the policeman, who told him to move on. He said he had taken three men to Grand and Easton, but did not tell who they were.

Smith was detained for further inquiry. He said he would not go to St. Louis without requisition papers. The East St. Louis police say one of his cars was used by men who robbed a men's furnishing store there the night of Sept. 28, and that Smith at that time reported the car had been stolen from him.

$3000 IN STOLEN FURS RECOVERED, TWO MEN HELD

Policeman Near When Show Window in Downtown Store Is Broken.

The show window of Sonnenfeld's store at 612 Washington avenue was smashed at 1 o'clock this morning for the second time within a week, furs being stolen each time, and the same officer, Patrolman Egenreither, was on the job and recovered the stolen property as he did last week.

Egenreither was in the neighborhood when he heard the falling glass, and, while running toward Sonnenfeld's, saw two men running north on Sixth street. He opened fire on them, but they outdistanced him.

With aid from police headquarters, Egenreither went to the Victoria Hotel, Seventh and Morgan streets, where four of the fur pieces were recovered in a washroom on the second floor and two pieces in a washroom on the third floor. Christy Dunn, 28 years old, was arrested on the second floor, and Harry Britton, 50, was arrested on the third floor. The furs, five coats and one cape, were valued at $3000.

In the previous robbery David Abrams was caught near the store with furs stolen from the show window.

BOMB DAMAGES RESIDENCE

By The Associated Press. SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 25.—Explosion of a bomb, thrown through the front window of a house occupied by F. B. Shong, general claim agent here for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, wrecked the lower floor of the two-story residence early today. Four persons in the house escaped injury.

Police found portions of the bomb near a fireplace in the living-room. Shong was unable to assign any reason for the attack.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

The Man in the Street.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In reply to A. O. Archer on "Root and Article 10," Mr. Root's change of heart concerning the league is not such a distinct shock at this stage of the game, especially after having tried to keep on the same side of the fence, for 24 hours, with our learned friend, Senator Harding, during his "flip-flop" campaigning activities of the past four weeks. Why isn't Mr. Root entitled to at least one change of mind, relative to the league, during the entire course of the campaign if Mr. Harding can change his as often as he changes his collar?

"In connection with the charge of your paper will say that it only serves to impress on the masses of the people the fidelity and strength of these men in standing firm for the saving of our republic."

When did the Senator acquire this new attribute of "fidelity"? And from whom? Whom is he faithful to? Borah and Johnson? Root, Taft and Wickerham? Or the American people?

Those of us who have followed Mr. Harding's record in the Senate up to the time of his nomination know just about how great a figure of "strength" he was. And whatever he has accumulated since then must be more of the physical brand, rather than the moral, and no doubt developed as a result of his proficiency as a "quick-change" artist, during the enactment of his daily one-act, front-porch sketch, entitled, "For and Agia the League!"

And does Mr. Archer mean to include Senator Harding as one of those who is standing "firm"? When, pray, can he be found in just that attitude and when he arrives at that state of being, just what is he "standing" for, is a question numerous Republican voters would like to have answered.

Mr. Archer further says that the Post-Dispatch is "woefully out of line with the man in the street on the league—Article 10." What he should say is, that the man in the street is woefully out of line, and hopelessly ignorant of the meaning of the league and the principles for which it stands.

The "man in the street" of Mr. Archer's acquaintance obviously knows nothing of the real issue of the campaign, the league, nor does he seek to find out. He is content in the belief——That the league is a league of war;

—That we have only one vote to Britain's six;

—That our army and navy will, under the league, be available and will be used to fight Europe's battles;

—That the league supersedes the Constitution.

And a hundred other such vague, far-fetched, impossible and improbable oar-catchalicious illusions.

And in furtherance of all these distortions of the truth which he has accepted as freely and as unqualifiedly as a child accepts the myth of Santa Claus, he will go to the polls on Nov. 2 and cast his vote, sacrificing, on the altar of bigotry and blind partisanship, his individual right and power to assist in bringing to the peoples of this earth a permanent and everlasting peace, and his opportunity to insure the land of his birth against a repetition of the horrors of the years 1917 and 1918 when 81,000 Americans gave their very lives for the principles of righteousness, justice and peace.

This is your "man in the street," Mr. Archer. But does he try to find the spirit and the great majority of the American people?

A. A. MAY.

The Farmer-Labor Campaign.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Farmer-Labor party is making a whirlwind campaign in the Eleventh Congressional District. Meetings are held every night. One of the best I attended was on the 18th of this month at Hagerdorn Hall, Fourteenth and Benton streets.

The speaker was the congressional candidate, Maj. E. W. Allen, who, by the way, is related to Allen, one of the three famous Irish martyrs—Allen, Larkins and O'Brien. The hall and corridor were filled to overflowing. The speaker dwelt mostly on the "recognition of the elected government of the Republic of Ireland." In his peculiar dramatic style, he pictured the misery, intelligence and good-heartedness of the Irish people. His satire, wit and humor drew tremendous applause. He also spoke of the political prisoners in this country and of the mention of Eugene V. Debs, an outburst spread through the crowd, which showed the presence of many Socialists.

He also paid his respects to the two old parties, as only Allen can do. His closing words were: "Give me liberty or give me death!" Altogether, the literary excellence of his address, the eloquence of his utterances, the magic of his voice, the magnetism of his presence, the earnestness of his plea, the highness of his heart, are well nigh overwhelming.

Mr. Allen is construction foreman in railroad work. At present he is construction foreman at the Municipal Dock. He resides at 211 North Ninth street.

D. COOLEY.

MR. DYER'S BAD ADVICE.

Narrow partisanship cannot go farther than the reported advice given by Congressman L. C. Dyer to his negro constituents to ignore the constitutional amendments in order to poll the full party vote for the Republican ticket. In the published report of his speech, Thursday night, he told the negroes to discard the constitutional amendments and vote the Republican ticket straight, in order to "facilitate voting." His advice was to hurry the Republican ticket through, without regard to the amendments.

In advising his constituents to discard the constitutional amendments, Mr. Dyer advised them to sacrifice the higher interests of the State to the success of the Republican ticket—to his own petty success at the polls. He advised them to discard justice to the teachers and better educational opportunities for themselves and all the people of the State; he advised them to discard the new Constitution, which is necessary for the educational and material progress of the State and the city, which is necessary for an equitable and efficient tax system; he advised them to discard good roads in the State, which are necessary to all other lines of progress, education, business, economy, comfort and population.

Vote 'er straight and save the Republican candidates, regardless of the enlightenment, progress and prosperity of the people of Missouri; regardless of the welfare and growth of the State. Let Missouri stay in the mud; let the new Constitution, with all its benefits, be lost; let the schools decline and the teachers starve; let the courts go to the demerition bow-wows, but save the offices for Mr. Dyer and his Republican associates.

We hope the voters, instead of voting straight, will see straight through this petty, narrow, selfish, partisan counsel. We hope they will realize that the fundamental things embodied in the constitutional amendments are of more value to the people of all parties and colors and creeds and races in the State than 20 Dyers and the whole Republican ticket, or any other party ticket. The effect of such advice upon intelligent voters is to lead them to question the fitness of an office holder who gives such advice—to question whether he or any other candidate who asks the voters to let Missouri stay in the mire of illiteracy and backwardness and in the mud of bad roads, in order that he and other party candidates may get the offices, ought to be elected to office. The voters should put principle and public welfare, country and State, above partisanship and the spoils of office.

MAYOR MACSWINEY'S MARTYRDOM.

The death of Terrence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, seals his martyrdom for Irish liberty with the supreme sacrifice.

Mayor MacSwiney may have violated the British sedition laws; he may have been legally punished under British law; he may have been wrong in his method of protest, but, whether right or wrong in his methods, his death proves his fidelity to his principles, his convictions and his country.

From any standpoint, the death of a political prisoner of MacSwiney's type in protest against oppression is a heavy weight upon the conscience of the British Government. It is another solemn protest against the injustice, bad faith and brutality of the policy pursued by Great Britain with regard to the just aspiration of an overwhelming majority of the Irish people for self-government. The martyrs to liberty which the British Government is creating in Ireland are rapidly increasing the weight of the moral judgment of the world against her. It is high time for the British people to take counsel of their consciences and heed the protests against oppression within and without the empire.

SCOTT COUNTY AND THE ROAD BONDS.

H. A. Long of Sikeston, Mo., writes the Post-Dispatch that he is opposed to the $60,000,000 bond issue for roads and that Scott County "will vote almost solidly against" the project. The assigned reason, though not convincing, is interesting.

Scott County some months ago voted about three to one for a $750,000 bond issue of its own for roads, and though the money is now almost spent, has little to show for the expenditure. Mr. Long charges that a little grading and a little gravel spread on some roads to a width of only nine feet represents about all that has been done with the large fund. The value received, he says, is an extent of highway "so rough it is pleasure to get to the old-fashioned dirt road."

If what he says is true, a very serious waste of public funds is indicated. It should be the subject of a searching inquiry to fix responsibility and perhaps looking to punishment. What, however, has an unfortunate experience in a single county, assuming that Mr. Long's charges are true, to do with a great movement to provide roads that really are satisfactory in all counties? If, because of some local lapses, waste, bungling and even graft have attended the building of a courthouse in one county, should all counties refuse to provide a courthouse and force the courts and county offices to house themselves under the shade trees of Courthouse Square? Scott County's case may show things to be avoided in road making, but if it has got little for its money, counties generally shouldn't be denied the conceded necessity of better roads.

With state-wide road building on a large scale, rigid supervision by the best experts can prevent such cases as Scott County's, without extravagant percentages of expenditure for overhead.

HARDING LOSES A PRIZE-WINNER.

And now Carl S. Joslyn has come out for Gov. Cox.

But who is Carl Joslyn, somebody may ask? The question will elicit a variety of indignant replies. It will be said that Joslyn is the most unkindliest cut. He may be called a serpent's tooth. He may be identified as the man that bites the hand that feeds him. In the bright lexicon of Will Hays, Joslyn will be given a synonym for blackest ingratitude. Treasurer Upham, delving among the canceled checks, will write beneath the indorsement of Joslyn, "a total loss."

By this time even the most jaded memories will recall Mr. Joslyn as the precocious Harvard student who won the $5000 prize for the best Republican platform. The contest, it will be recollected, attracted a good deal of attention and Mr. Joslyn experienced the rare Byronic joy of awaking to find himself famous.

Joslyn is now disillusioned. He explains in a letter to the Springfield (Mass.) Republican that he can't support Harding. He has been watching the gyrations at Marion with misgiving, but yet with hopes. "A reconstructed Hague tribunal did not terrify me," says Joslyn, "for I felt sure that he (Harding) would not be so foolishly presumptuous as to approach the nations of Europe, who are clinging for dear life to the treaty of Versailles and the League of Nations covenant, with a plan to throw overboard all that has been so painfully, so laboriously and even so faultily built up and to turn back to the wretched beginnings with nothing more in the way of a constructive program than a vaguely expressed intent to put teeth into something." But now that Harding has "declared his unqualified approval of the utterances of Senators Borah and Johnson," Joslyn is obliged to quit. In his departure, however, he pauses to speculate as to how "that deft sidestepper," Mr. Taft, will wriggle out of the predicament.

But though Joslyn's renunciation contributes a droll note to a dull campaign, it is not without significance. There are many Joslyns throughout the country, young and old, who feel deeply on this vital question of what America is to do for the maintenance of world peace. It is not a party question and they do not intend to sacrifice conviction on the stupid altar of party regularity.

The episode will provoke many a smile, but not in the harried headquarters of Mr. Harding.

Sometimes, too, it seems as if William Howard Taft were an aggressive candidate for a place on the Supreme bench.

WOMEN'S ADMIRABLE SERVICE.

The women of St. Louis are showing purpose and energy in their opposition to the ring-nominated judicial candidates. It is a demonstration of political, or, rather, civic, activity, for which St. Louis should be most grateful.

The arm of the political boss is long, but it must not reach into the courts. The courts must be kept free of machine contamination, even of party relationships. The absolute necessity for such immunity ought to be clear to the machine politicians. They ought to realize that if there is one institution that must not be brought within the sphere of their bartering influence, it is the courts. Once the processes of justice are clogged or diverted by political consideration, the hour for popular revolt has struck.

The three Judges who have enjoyed the approval and favor of the machine have only themselves to blame for the revulsion of sentiment against them. That revulsion has taken on a new force and momentum by the determination of the women of St. Louis. And in no way could the women of St. Louis more surely justify the wisdom of the suffrage extension than by identifying themselves with the effort to purge our courts of politics.

But in this instance the women have done more than identify themselves with a fine public enterprise. They have assumed a leadership in the opposition to the three K's—a leadership which gives promise that the desired result will be accomplished.

It may be a far cry from the days "When knight-hood was in flower," but Nat and Bobby, just the same, are welcome guests at Sir Arthur's round table.

It's all right to make Leonard Wood Secretary of War, but what, pray, does the improbable Harding administration intend doing for that other veteran—Lillian Russell?

PARTY TIES.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

ROOT JOINS THE FAKIRS.

ELIHU ROOT has now entered into a law partnership with the well-known Republican firm of Wiggle & Wobble, for the defense of the Harding campaign. As the attorney for a crooked client, Root is trying to make the best case he can, regardless of the previous acts and utterances of Elihu Root as a responsible statesman.

In his speech at Carnegie Hall, Mr. Root asserted that "Article 10 is inconsistent with the purpose and spirit of the league," but eight months ago Mr. Root was arguing that regardless of the objections to Article 10, it should be retained for at least five years in order to stabilize the peace of the world.

March 29, 1919, Mr. Root wrote to Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, a letter in which he proposed certain amendments to the covenant of the league. Among them was the following amendment to Article 10: "After the expiration of five years from the signing of the convention any party may terminate its obligations under this article by giving one year's notice in writing to the Secretary General of the league."

Mr. Root's objection to article 10, as stated in this letter, was not that it created a "super-government," as Senator Harding has so foolishly declared, or that it would drag the United States into war against its will, as Mr. Root himself now pretends, but that it made existing boundaries permanent.

"Change and growth are the law of life and no generation can impose its will in regard to the growth of nations and the distribution of power upon succeeding generations.

"I think, however, that this article must be considered not merely with reference to the future, but with reference to the present situation in Europe. Indeed, this whole agreement ought to be considered in that double aspect."

After reviewing the situation in detail, Mr. Root arrived at this carefully considered conclusion: "Order must be restored. The allied nations in their council must determine the lines of reconstruction. Their determination must be enforced. Under these conditions the United States cannot quit. It must go on to its duty and the immediate aspect of article 10 is an agreement to do that."

That is what Elihu Root believed before the impossible Harding had been named for President by the Republican senatorial oligarchy. Now that the Republican candidate for President has surrendered to the hyphenated vote and to the Battalion of Death, Mr. Root has meekly taken his place among the quitters and submitted a brief in justification of his client. The United States must no longer go on to its duty. It must hide under the bed and shirk all responsibility.

Mr. Root, however, has not gone quite to the lengths of Mr. Taft. There are still parts of the Republican campaign that he cannot stomach. Although he refuses to correct the distortions and misrepresentations against which Mr. Cox protested, he admits that the Lodge reservations to article 10 were fraudulent and that the Harding "super-state" is a fake. In reply to Gov. Cox's assertion that he is willing to accept reservations that "will clearly state to our colleagues in the league that Congress and Congress alone has the right to declare war," Mr. Root makes this answer:

"That, it seems to me, is what you are willing to do about article 10. Well, it is absolutely nothing. Everybody knows already that only Congress has the right to declare war and that there are limits to legislation and treaty-making power. All governments of civilized nations know it. You accomplish nothing by telling them of it again." In spite of this repudiation of Lodge, Harding and the Senate majority, in spite of his own

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark Macdams

FREE VERSE.

THE other day, when we were all busy in here seeking to save the country from the folly of repudiating the League of Nations, the door opened.

There stood a travel-worn but proud little gentleman in a dark suit and pink whiskers, who made a bow such as we see in illustrations of the "Arabian Nights."

"Gentlemen," he said, "it is Hamilton Lewis who greets you! I am the Democratic candidate for Governor in your neighboring State of Illinois."

With which he made another profound obeisance, and we all rushed from our seats to grasp the hand of that hardy son of the people who offers himself at a time when the State of Illinois is about to be gobbled by the Thompson machine.

Four years ago, when the Democratic national convention was held in St. Louis, this same James Hamilton Lewis, sometime United States Senator from Illinois, was at the Jefferson Hotel.

Three or four times a day through that week he repaired to his room and put on a new suit.

He changed his clothes as often as Senator Harding changes his platform.

We had never seen any such sartorial splendor; and just a Minute, amused by the spectacle, finally pronounced him a tailor's goose.

Nevertheless, dear reader, Jim Ham, as they formerly called him in Chicago; James Hamilton, as we knew him; or merely Hamilton, as he denominated himself in the editorial sanctum the other day, is the only true darling of the gods we have ever met.

We asked him the other day how he is doing, and you should have seen what imperious assurance he drew himself up and said: "I shall be elected."

He will be elected, too, just as surely as a prune is chiefly pit.

The gods care for their darlings. Years ago this dapper little gentleman went into the Northwest somewhere from down South and straightway turned up as a representative in Congress.

His career as a Congressman was brief. The gods get their darlings about pretty lively. He next turned up as corporation counsel of the city of Chicago.

Then, after no Democrat had gone from Illinois to the United States Senate since Roger was a pup, and at a time when the Republicans were divided, didn't James Hamilton pop out of the bandbox and get the Democratic nomination?

He did.

On the very day that Mr. Root sent this letter to Gov. Cox he made an address to the Bar Association in which he pleaded for his plan for a permanent court of international justice under the League of Nations, by the terms of which any nation can be brought into court by any other nation and compelled to abide by the decision of a tribunal in which the United States, if the Republican campaign managers have their way, is not to be represented and in which it is to have no voice in the selection of judges. Compared with the obligation of Mr. Root's court, the obligations of Article 10 are trivial.

He was elected, too. He became in the Senate probably the ablest speaker upon the Democratic side.

He stood squarely behind Mr. Wilson, in whom he recognized a great leader; and people who had something to say against Mr. Wilson in the Senate usually chose a moment when James Hamilton was out.

Just to show the dunderheaded Republicans that they did not know anything, too, he wrote a book in which he drew a series of warnings for our own republic from the history of Rome. That rocked them.

Very well. That brings us up to date. You know how much chance a Democrat running for Governor of Illinois stands ordinarily. It is no chance at all.

But James Hamilton is a darling of the gods. He happens to be running at a time when the Republicans in Illinois are split wider than Abe Lincoln could split a rail.

Thousands of Republicans are refusing to support the Thompson candidate for Governor. The Chicago Tribune has bolted him. So has the whole crowd opposed to Thompson.

"Still," says James Hamilton, "I have my work cut out for me."

There are in Illinois this year 87,000 colored votes not cast in the last presidential election. "These are negroes who have come from the South."

"I have a strong resentment of our war against Germany upon the part of German sympathizers."

"All the same, gentlemen, and I bid you good-day, I shall be elected."

He will.

Whom the gods prefer they adorn with pink whiskers.

Mr. Taft says the League of Nations is merely an academic question and really not a vital issue in the campaign. To Mr. Taft, whose surrender to influences exploiting us wound up his career in the White House with a single term, the big issue is whether people who work are to enjoy some part of the wealth they create or the capitalist is to have it all.

That is to people like Mr. Taft and Senator Harding a really serious question to be decided in the election, and they care more about it than they do about peace. So do Judge Gary and all the rest of the big wigs who like to have such men as Mr. Taft and Senator Harding made President, and don't like to have such people as Col. Roosevelt, Mr. Wilson and Gov. Cox elected anything.

Because his "heart is in the grave" over prohibition, though everybody else considers that issue settled, Mr. Bryan sulks in his tent and does nothing for the League of Nations, a big gear and better cause than Mr. Bryan ever stood for in his life. He could be rendering a great service to humankind in this campaign, particularly among church people, who easily respond to the religious fervor with which Mr. Bryan pleads. We need the church people in this fight for peace. They are for peace, but the sophistries of the priests of Bellal confuse them. Only Mr. Bryan could set them aright, and this morning, though the trumpet blows and Hector defies us from the wall, our Achilles has not yet left his Gold Medal cot and all is still about his tent.

If Gov. Cox doesn't look out we shall be calling him the little giant. He fights anything with adorable courage, not excepting even the Saturday Evening Post. At that, he hasn't quite stated the case against the Post. It has destroyed our taste for good literature, as injury from which we shall be suffering long after the quarrel between capital and labor, which lands it upon the side of Senator Harding, will have been settled one way or the other.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

HE KNOCKED at Anderson's door, which was opened immediately. Although it was still daylight, heavy curtains drawn across the windows shut it out, and the electric light was switched on.

"We've come to see Mr. Anderson," said Screeed to the man who opened the door. "Ever been in these chambers before, Mr. Yates?"

"Never."

"No one been here for months, the porter says, and he ought to know. There, Mr. Yates."

He had shepherded me across the room, and as he spoke he whisked a sheet from a chest of drawers which was pushed back against a wall. I stopped with a half-strangled cry in my throat. Lying there was a man—dead, murdered. He had been stabbed in the neck.

"Does Mr. Anderson explain why I am here?" Screeed asked after a pause. I did not answer immediately. I looked at him then at the dead man again, and unpleasant ideas rushed into my brain. Here was an adventure I could easily have done without.

"A detective," I said slowly. I began to have a vague impression that I had heard the name of Screeed before, had seen it in a newspaper, perhaps.

"That's the position," he answered.

I bent down to look at the dead man, to look closely into his face.

"That is not Anderson," I said.

"Look at him again. Violent death alters the aspect of a man."

"That is not Anderson," I repeated.

"Very curious," said Screeed, taking a case from his pocket. "That is a photograph of Anderson—authentic. It seems to me it is the picture of the man lying there."

"Yes, but it is not Anderson," I answered.

"An interesting point," he said, replacing the sheet and the case. "We must argue it out. Shall it be here or upstairs?"

"In my chambers," I said.

He said something which I could not catch to the man as he opened the door for us, and we went upstairs in silence. Screeed took my most comfortable chair without invitation.

"First suggestion," he said. "Draw the curtains and switch on the light. Prevents people in the opposite houses getting too interested."

I complied.

"Second suggestion. Don't tell me anything you don't want me to repeat. Talking to me is sometimes like talking into a gramophone."

"Look here, Mr. Screeed, are you thinking that I killed the man downstairs?"

"Suggestion three. Should advise you to tell me everything you know."

"You do not answer my question," I returned. "Suggestion four. Do not expect it. I hardly ever do answer questions. Spend most of my time asking them. If you haven't smoked all your cigarettes I'll have one."

I passed him my case.

"Egyptians, and you usually smoke Virginian, by the ends on the hearth. Dined out last night and ran short. That is interesting to me, Mr. Yates."

"I fail to understand why."

"Perhaps naturally, perhaps not. My profession is full of uncertainties, only to be met by careful method. My method is always the same. I always fix on one person and radiate from him until I hit the truth. Works excellently. Sometimes the person I originally fix on is the truth. In this case I have fixed on you. See?"

I laughed but felt uncomfortable. I defy anyone not to feel a shiver down his spine when Screeed shot out suggestions of this kind.

"You see the idea, Mr. Yates. The first questions which come into my mind are: 'What did you do last night, and why were you in such a hurry this morning?' That hole might be the answer to both questions."

"It isn't," I said. "I will tell you why I was in a hurry this morning."

"No. It may help things a bit if I tell you," Screeed returned. "You were smoking at your window when a girl in a fur coat passed through the court and waved to you. A signal, eh, Mr. Yates?"

"A signal?"

"May I ask if you have had a pleasant day?"

"No."

"Then my third suggestion. Tell me all you know."

I told him exactly as I have set it down here. Further, I explained that I had dined alone last night, had gone to the theater, and, meeting an acquaintance, had gone back to his rooms in Bury street to play cards for an hour or so.

"Do you often do that kind of thing?"

"I am out a great deal."

"Constantly home late, eh?"

"Yes. I am often at my club until late—the Oriental."

"So that if anyone wanted to come and look at that hole during the evening he might fairly calculate on your not being in?"

"I do not live by rule, and anyone would run considerable risk by entering my chambers uninvited."

"He might knock first," said Screeed. "He might be someone you knew, Mr. Anderson, for instance, and therefore not make you suspicious if you happened to be in."

"The dead man is not Mr. Anderson," I said.

SHOWING THE DESIRABLE RESULTS OBTAINED BY STICKING TO THE SAME POLITICAL OPINIONS AS THE LANDLADY

"Well, you might have a visit from the gentleman you know as Mr. Anderson. It would interest me to hear about him."

"I do not know him. I have met him on the stairs once or twice, and seen him unlock his door. He was only about for two or three weeks. The porter could tell you more about him than I can."

"How long is it since you have seen him?" Screeed asked.

"Seven or eight months."

Screeed was thoughtful for a few minutes.

"Now about this girl. What kind of a girl was she? Something very special, surely, to make you tumble down the stairs in such a hurry?"

"She was disappointing on closer inspection and not at all pleased to find I was following her."

"Then why did she invite you by waving?"

"I didn't discuss the matter with her, I just accepted the position, and put my tail between my legs."

"Are you sure she waved?"

"Quite. She was carrying her glove in her hand. Of course, it is possible she was waving to someone else."

"Oh, no, it was to you all right."

"How do you know?"

"From information received," and he laughed.

"Would you know the girl again?"

"Do you mean close to or from my window?"

"Close to."

"Yes."

"You have more confidence in yourself than I have in Jeremy Screeed, which is saying a lot. She did no glove waving when you spoke to her?"

"No. She kept her hands in her muff."

"You are observant, Mr. Yates. You will have to come and help me when I get into difficulties, that is if I can get you off this time. Were they brown gloves?"

"I couldn't swear to that."

"But the coat and muff were brown."

"Yes."

"That color?" and Screeed suddenly held out a tuft of brown fur to me.

"Something of that color, but I am not going to swear to that, either."

"This tuft was found in the hand of the dead man," Screeed went on, "presumably pulled from the muff or cloak in a death struggle. You did not happen to notice whether there was a piece missing when you stood close to the girl?"

"I did not."

"Well, Mr. Yates, that is all for the present," said Screeed, rising. "You will be asked a lot more questions at the police court tomorrow, no doubt. There is no harm in your putting on a thick coat, although I do not think you will find your cell particularly cold tonight."

"Cell?"

"Sorry, but you are under arrest. I have two men on the landing and a revolver in my hip pocket. Take my advice and be philosophical."

As a man I found Screeed rather amusing, as a detective he was evidently a dismal failure. He had not only got hold of the wrong dead man, but the wrong living one as well. I was not much interested in the dead man, but my own position was startling and unpleasant. My mind was suddenly full of all the cases of mistaken justice I had ever heard of.

At the hearing next day I was bound to admit that Screeed had got some excuse for his mistake. The porter of Palm Tree Court, who had received more tips from me than I could afford, did not say very much, but he left the impression that I was a man of irregular habits. The way he put it almost convinced me that I was. Until that moment I had never seen myself as others saw me.

On the conclusion of his statement an adjournment was asked for, as it was expected that further evidence would be forthcoming. I was removed in custody, and it was difficult to realize that I did not deserve it. There are times when it is not easy to believe in your own innocence.

The porter also swore to the dead man being Anderson, and when I asked what other person had a key to Mr. Anderson's rooms, he declared that I could not possibly have seen anyone entering them. I imagine that everyone present, from the Magistrate downwards, assumed that I had looked upon the wine when it was red.

But there was worse evidence against me. A man, quite a young fellow, up from the country, stated that he had come to find a Mr. Wicklow at No. 14 Palm Tree Court. He had evidently been given the wrong court, for the name was not known there. He was coming down the stairs of No. 14, and was on the first landing, when, looking from the window, he saw a girl in a brown fur coat come out of the house opposite. At the time he did not notice it was No. 5. She went to the colonnade end and made a signal to a man who had opened an upper window. He recognized me as the man. The girl passed through the colonnade. He watched for a moment from the landing window, rather amused by the little romance, then came down the stairs. As he came along the passage to the door he saw a gentleman whom he now knew to be Screeed, and who had come from the other end of the court, enter the house opposite. The next minute I rushed out and went in pursuit of the girl. The recital served to strain my character further.

Screeed's evidence was scrappy. He did not repeat a word of our conversation, nor did he mention the hole in the floor of my chambers. What he did say, however, was sensational. For some time past search had been made on the continent, and in this country, for a gang of thieves and blackmailers. Their operations were extensive and miscellaneous in character, extending at times to well-paid spy work. It was only lately that any real clues regarding the members of this gang had been picked up, and it was discovered that a woman was a very prominent member of it. An unexpected communication had been received from a Mr. Anderson of Palm Tree Court saying he was in possession of certain information which would be useful to the authorities, and on the morning in question Screeed had called at the time appointed. He had met me rushing wildly down the stairs. When he went to Mr. Anderson's chambers he could get no answer, and when, with the help of the porter, he had got in, it was only to find Mr. Anderson dead upon the floor.

On the conclusion of his statement an adjournment was asked for, as it was expected that further evidence would be forthcoming. I was removed in custody, and it was difficult to realize that I did not deserve it. There are times when it is not easy to believe in your own innocence.

To Be Concluded Tomorrow.

DEFECTIVES IN THE HOME

BY SOPHIE IRENE LOEB.

MANY times I have received letters regarding the problem of defective or delinquent children in the family. And now comes a communication from a young girl of 19. She says:

"I want to ask you a question and want to know if I am as selfish as my mother says I am."

"One of my brothers is mentally defective and that makes me very miserable, as I am ashamed to bring any friends to the house for fear they will run into him, which if it ever does happen, will make me very embarrassed."

"When I am at home, I am very nervous and so is my little sister, who is only 11 years old."

"I have told my mother the best place to put him would be in an institution. She says I am selfish and heartless, as he is my own brother. Perhaps I am, but do you think it is fair to my little sister and me?"

"Do you think that insane people should stay among normal people, or be put in an institution? I hardly ever sleep nights, this thing hovering over me so."

I would not say to this young woman that she was selfish, but rather thoughtless. There is one thing for her to rectify upon. It is this: If any young man who comes to see her should see her defective brother and then hold it against her, he is not worth having as a friend.

On the contrary, a young man who is truly worth while would respect a girl more for being solicitous of her unfortunate brother or other member of her family than he would if he knew her family sought to hide it and was ashamed of it.

In the first place, there is nothing to be ashamed of—this thing for one of your own who is helpless. Certainly when one gets so far defective or delinquent or insane that he is a menace to the family or becomes too much of a burden, then for the good of such a one and all concerned, he might better be placed in an institution.

But, on the other hand, the great good of the world has developed because of the fundamental principle of the strong caring for and even something something in the interest of the weak.

It is quite natural that a mother should want to hold on to her flesh and blood no matter how deficient it is as against leaving such an one in the care of strangers. It is a natural human thing and every member of the family should aid her in her fight to hold on.

Some care and kindness to such a one is most essential, and many of us have been bettered and strengthened and brought back to normal condition by such attentive care as only a loved one can give.

It was upon this principle that the splendid laws of Scotland in this connection have been founded. Public charges who are defective or even lunatics are boarded out or even housed in good homes as against putting them into institutions. Of course there is a cross to bear in the family of such a one, but if all equally shared the responsibility the struggle would be lessened and each member of such a family would be better off as against abandoning such an unfortunate creature in order to make it easier for themselves.

I know a mother whose one solace in her remaining years of life was the love of such a defective child when all others had gone off and married and left her.

Certainly there is no question that an institution is better and more to be desired for one who is a menace and a hopeless burden in the home. But the whole matter must be decided by the health authorities and the family itself.

In my humble judgement there is no social stigma whatever attached to any family who is confronted with such a condition. The outsider who comes into such a home and lessens his regard because they have in their midst a decrepit member, is not only lacking in breeding and feeling, but has lost the greatest thing of all—the great human quality that makes real men and real women.

I would say to the young woman mentioned that such friends are not worth cultivating and the sooner she leaves them out the better. Some one will come who will appreciate the situation and not hold it against her.

Potatoes A La Brabanconne

PARE, boil and mash six potatoes of medium size, then season with pepper and salt. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and sufficient cream or milk to make the mixture of the consistency usually sought for in mashed potato. When thoroughly beaten, add one-third an onion, grated, or a tablespoonful of onion juice, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and four tablespoonfuls of fine-chopped ham. Put the mixture into a buttered pudding dish, cover the top with half a cupful of cracker crumbs that have been stirred into one-fourth of a cupful of melted butter, and bake about 15 minutes.

HONEY SPONGE CAKE

MIX one-half cupful sugar and one-half cupful syrup, and boil until the syrup will spin a thread when dropped from a spoon. Pour this syrup over the well-beaten yolks of four eggs and beat mixture until cold; then add one cupful sifted flour and cut and fold the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs into mixture. Bake in low oven for three-fourths of an hour in a pan lined with buttered paper.

CHARMING NEGLIGENCE.

FOR the comfort of the one to whom the attainment of that exquisite neatness that is so much admired in either sex is well nigh impossible, just bear in mind the opposite characteristic has also had its admirers. Of course no one sings the praises of slovenliness, but poets have written verses to a certain negligence in dressing and one poet even went in for that sort of thing himself. It was Lord Byron who set the fashion in the early part of the last century for young men, who went about it quite painstakingly to arrange their neckties as if they were tied with indifference, and in portraits of Edgar Allan Poe we notice that one of his waistcoat buttons are unfastened, which was certainly intentional. The Byronic studied negligence was in full vogue. So young men arranged their hair to indicate a certain poetic concern for its appearance. That sort of thing was quite the rage then.

And in women, too, this lack of precision in dressing had its admirers. Leonora d'Este, who inspired Tasso's sonnets, was negligent in her dress, but this did not abate Tasso's ardor one whit. In fact he liked her the more because of it. Robert Herrick, an English poet of the Shakespearean epoch was, like Tasso, an admirer of the negligently dressed woman and from one of his poems these lines have become famous:

"A sweet disorder in the dress, Kindles in clothes a wantonness."

Mme. de Staël was noted for her careless dressing, but with her it was hardly spoken of as a fault, but rather as a natural characteristic. It was due to absent-mindedness as much as anything else and that excuse of her preoccupation with matters that called for intellectual concentration.

Lucy Foster in Mrs. Humphrey Ward's "Eleanor" was regarded by Mrs. Ward as a typical young New England American girl and who, she says, "perhaps a fitting type of a young crude race with all its lessons to learn." It is described as stiff and indifferently dressed. Perhaps it was true of American women some time ago that they did dress indifferently, and maybe foreigners found some charm in their negligence in this respect, but the American woman abroad now has won the reputation of being extremely well dressed and careful of the details of her toilet.

And if you want a thoroughly up-to-date poetical tribute to the sweet disorder in female dress just go to Tagore, the Hindu.

"Come as you are; do not loiter over your toilet."

"If your braided hair has loosened, if the parting of your hair be not straight, if the ribbons of your bodice be not fastened, do not mind."

APPLE FRUIT CAKE

S OAK two cupfuls dried apples over night. Draw off the water in the morning and add $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful molasses. Boil until commencing to thicken, then add $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful butter, $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful sour milk, one heaping teaspoonful soda and $\frac{1}{2}$ cupful raisins. Use sufficient flour to make a stiff batter. Spice with one teaspoonful cinnamon and allspice. Two or three eggs may be added. This cake may be baked or steamed.

DATE SOUFFLE

S TONE and crush to a paste one pound dates. Beat the whites of four eggs very stiff; gradually add one-half cupful sugar, beating all the time, then stir in the crushed dates. Put into baking dish and bake 20 minutes. Served with sweetened whipped cream flavored with vanilla.

FRIED CHEESE BALLS

B EAT the whites of three eggs, add one and one-half cupfuls grated cheese, one tablespoonful of flour and salt and pepper. Make into balls and roll in cracker crumbs. Drop into hot fat and fry until brown.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

CHATTERER MAKES FUN OF BUSTER BEAR.

IN all the Green Forest there is no more unruly tongue than the tongue of Chatterer, the Red Squirrel. It seems that he can no more keep it still than can water run up hill. Perhaps it is because he likes the sound of his own voice. Whatever the reason, Chatterer's tongue is going a large part of the time he is awake.

It wouldn't be so bad if no one but himself got in trouble as a result of that unruly tongue, but quite as often as not it gets other people in trouble. This is the reason that Chatterer is not loved by his neighbors. Most of them look on him as a mischief maker, and you know a mischief maker never is loved.

Now it just happened that Chatterer saw Buster Bear trying to dig out Whitefoot, the Wood Mouse. He was in a tree close by and he saw all that happened. He saw Whitefoot dive into his little tunnel and he saw Buster Bear tear up the ground with his great claws. He saw Whitefoot dart out of another doorway and climb the tree right back of Buster and hide in a hollow in a dead branch halfway up.

It tickled Chatterer. It always does tickle him to see any one bigger than himself fooled by any one. Chatterer fairly hugged himself in glee as he watched Buster Bear working so hard for nothing.

"Go it, Buster! Go it!" he shouted. "Don't let such a pinch of nothing get away from you! I've heard Whitefoot boast that you are smart enough to catch him, and now is your chance to get him!"

Buster did go it. He made the dirt fly as he tore up the ground with his great claws. It was very exciting and Chatterer jerked his tail until it was a wonder he didn't snap it off. All the time he kept shouting encouragement to Buster Bear and urging him to dig faster.

But at last Buster had torn up the ground all around without finding Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and realized that somehow he had been fooled. He stopped digging and on his face was a decidedly foolish look. Then Chatterer grew saucy and impudent. He began to make fun of Buster Bear. His tongue fairly flew.

"Stupid! Stupid! Stupid!" he shrieked. "Buster Bear isn't smart enough to catch a little Wood Mouse! You couldn't catch a flea on the end of your nose!"

Buster Bear is big and strong and his claws are stout and long. But his wits—Oh, dear! Oh, dear! He has none at all, I fear.

"Anybody afraid of you would be afraid of his own shadow. You couldn't catch Old Mr. Toad if he sat down in front of your nose. I wouldn't be so stupid for anything in the world."

All the time Chatterer was jumping from branch to branch in that "Stupid! Stupid! Stupid!" he shrieked.

Chatterer jumped for the nearest tree, which happened to be the very one Whitefoot the Wood Mouse was in. Up the tree whisked Chatterer, and from one of the upper branches looked down and made faces at Buster Bear, all the time calling him names.

Buster Bear looked up and growled, and an ugly sounding, rumbling, grumbly growl it was. Then he started to climb up that tree.

VEAL POT PIE

WIPE a piece of veal from the shoulder and cut it into pieces for serving. Add a half-inch strip of salt pork or bacon for each piece of veal. Cover with cold water, put over the fire, and bring quickly to the boiling point. Let boil for five minutes, skin and let simmer until meat is tender. When nearly done, add salt and pepper to taste, and if desired, potatoes, pared, parboiled five minutes, drained, rinsed in cold water, and drained again. Have ready a steamer of boiling water. On the rack, thoroughly buttered, place some rounds of biscuit dough. Let these cook 15 or 20 minutes, covered closely, and without allowing the water to stop boiling. Serve them on ends of the platter on which stew is served.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

TO A LITTLE BOY AND GIRL
And so you think the robin's child
Has not a thing to do
But chirp and flutter, free and wild,
The happy hours through
And bathe himself in crystal brooks,
And fill the air with song,
While you must bend over lesson books
In school, the whole day long!

But you are wrong, my little friends,
For where the branches sway,
The school the robin's child attends,
Makes yours seem merely play.
And if he fails to learn to fly,
Or firmly clutch a limb,
Old Mr. Pussy Cat comes by
And that's the last of him!

And he must train his beady eye
For almost half a year,
With watchfulness to scan the sky,
When Old Man Hawk is near.
And, oh! the weary weeks of work,
Before he knows the sound
That tells where worms—the dinner—lurk,
Beneath the grassy ground.

And if one lesson's left unlearned,
Out yonder in the wood,
Well-up his little toes are turned
And school is out for good.
The school the robin's child attends,
Is hard, and stern and grim,
And not for words, my little friends,
Would you exchange with him!

The Faithful Ouija—By Frueh
